SAY MINT HOLDUP IN 1922 IS SOLVED

Chicago Authorities Lay
Long Line of Big Crimes to Band, Taken After Wide, Diligent Hunt.

CHICAGO, May 8.—(P)—Bank
robbers netting more than $5,000,000;
kidnapings which brought in $1,000, 000 ransom, and the $200,000 holdup
of the Denver mint in 1922 were attributed by authorities tonight to seven desperadoes seized in a raid at East St. Louis, Ill., late today.

Described by police as a cluster of what remained of the Fred Burke, Cuckoo and Shelton gangs of southern Illinois, the seven were captured in a spectacular sortie.

Postoffice inspectors, department of justice agents, Illinois state highway
police, Chicago detectives and East St. Louis officials closed in on them, to end a search which had criss-crossed the nation. They immediately were started for Chicago over a route held secret.

In addition to the Denver mint
holdup, in which a guard was killed, Roy McWhorter, Chicago postal inspector, laid these other crimes to members of the gang.

Theft of $1,000,000 from the Lincoln (Neb.) National bank September 13, 1930.

Slaying of Mrs. Cora Garrison, wife of Clyde Garrison, Peoria gambler, October 17, 1930.

Slaying of Thomas J. Rooney, Chicago labor leader, March 19, 1931.

Kidnaping of Fred J. Blumer, Monroe (Wis.) brewer.

Kidnaping of James Hackett, Blue Island (Ill.) gambling king, who was released on a reputed payment of $150,000.

In all, according to figures presented by McWhorter and Pat Roche, chief investigator for the state's attorney, the proceeds from more than 40 bank robberies in Illinois, Indiana, Iowa and Wisconsin—believed to have been the work of this gang—will reach the $5,000,000 figure.

Those arrested and started for Chicago were: Tommy Hayes, Thomas O'Connor, Jack Britt, Howard Lee,
E. Hawks, William McQuillan and Dewey Sullivan.

Statements made by Roche and Mc-Whorter listed among the bank hold-ups those at Mundelein, Clearing, Elmhurst, Lafayette, Neponset and Marion, Ill., and Walworth and Bristol, Wis.

"There are plenty of others," Roche added, "scattered throughout the midwest. In fact, some of them go far beyond this territory."

Hackett told a story of paying $150,000 ransom to a trio of men who seized him a week ago and released him the next day. The federal government, however, doubted his word and several agents characterized it as "a scheme to outwit an investigation into his delinquent income taxes." Today the government filed

Capt. Robert Dollar Has Turn for Worse

SAN RAFAEL, Cal., May 8.—(P)— Dr. Rafael G. Duffy, physician attending Captain Robert Dollar, veteran of a shipping and lumber man, tonight said Dollar was "getting worse." A child seized Captain Dollar in the afternoon.

Captain Dollar, who recently observed his 87th birthday, has been ill
two months since he was operated upon for a gall bladder complaint. He then contracted pyelitis, kidney ailment, his physician said.

Auto Accident Fatal To Atlanta Minister

REV. J. L. JACKSON.

D. A. V. SPEAKERS ATTACK MELLON

Financial Arrangements for Veterans Scored by Tate and by Senators.

Attacks on Andrew Mellon and policies of the republican administration generally regarding the care of disabled veterans featured addresses delivered Friday morning at the tenth annual convention of the Georgia department, Disabled American Veterans of the World War, in session at the Ansley hotel.

Addressing the assembled veterans,
United States Senator W. J. Harris,
first speaker on the program, said:
"Our government owes you more than it owes anybody else and you are going to get help when you need it. The senator or congressman who votes against aid for veterans is an ingrate."

United States Senator Walter F.
George, chairman of the sub-committee on veterans' legislation, and one of the leading spirits in the passage of the recent relief measure, branded that measure as "inadequate, though
the best that could be passed at the time." "I vote without apology for the adjusted service loan bill," he said, "and I voted without apology to override the president's veto. But I want you to understand that I do not at all think it fair that the government charges veterans 4-1-2 per cent
on their loans when only yesterday
Secretary of the Treasury Mellon sold $50,000,000 in bonds at less than 2 per cent interest."

Doubts Pensions Issue.
"Very poor gear," he continued,
"is shown by the administration in warning the country that the question of pensions will have to be faced in the near future, as I notice by the newspapers. I do not believe this;
but if such a thing happens it will be the administration's own fault, for it opposed the equitable legislation designed to grant adequate compensation to those veterans who deserve
it."

Many veterans, he added, "are obliged to take a pension and are convinced that they have no other resource. I say that where any doubt remains the decision should be in favor of the veteran."

In the course of his address, Senator George announced that substantial additions to the Atlanta and Augusta veterans' hospitals will be provided by the recent appropriation of $20,800,000 for hospital enlargement.

Michelson, His Life Ebbing Away, Finishes Work on Big Experiment

PASADENA, Cal., May 8.—(P)—
Dr. Albert A. Michelson, who measured the speed of light and made possible the measurement of distances of stars, was near death tonight. Physicians said there was no hope and life was but a matter of hours for the 75-year-old famous scientist, stricken with paralysis.

His mind, which physicists throughout the world say was one of the greatest in contemporary science, snapped last night with a cerebral hemorrhage.

Until 5:30 p. m. the great mind functioned with lucidity. The death of American physicists, knowing the end was but a matter of days, had been informed his last great experiment on a new precise measurement of the speed of light was successful.

This was the one thing he seemed to care about. He called Professor Francis G. Pease, of the Mount Wilson laboratory, who was conducting

GIANT DO-X OFF ON DANGEROUS HOP TO SOUTH AMERICA

News of Start of Huge Seaplane Told in Wire- less Received on Cape Verde Islands.

ST. VINCENT, Cape Verde Islands, May 8.—(UP)—The giant flying boat, DO-X, left Bubaque, near Bolama, Portuguese Guinea, on its hazardous trans-Atlantic flight to Brazil today, wireless dispatches from Guinea said.

The dispatches were not confirmed
from other sources.

The report said the DO-X left Bu-bague at 7 a. m. The objective was understood to be the rocky island of Fernando do Noronha, about 125 miles off the coast of Brazil. The distance from Guinea to the island
over the south Atlantic was estimated at a little over 1,500 miles.

A dispatch from Bolama yesterday reported that the DO-X had been taken to Bubaque, whence the start
had been planned at dawn today.

It is estimated that approximately 30 hours would be required for the huge flying-boat to make the hop from the west African coast.

It is possible that the officers of the DO-X might continue on to Natal, Brazil, without making the stop.

The DO-X, built by the Dornier Works at Lake Constance, in Switzerland, across from Friedrichshafen, Germany, started its trans-Atlantic cruise last fall. Accidents delayed
it frequently.

A wing burned at Lisbon, necessitating weeks of repairs. The great machine reached the Canary Islands,
where a pontoon was badly damaged
in a test flight. The repairs required the presence of a mechanical engineer from Germany, and it was not until last week that the journey was resumed.

Although the delays marred the original enthusiasm for the flight of the DO-X—largest heavier-than-air craft in the world—its record is impressive.

RAIL EXECUTIVES ASK RATE CHANGE

Must Have Four Hundred Million Greater Annual Revenue.

CHICAGO, May 8.—(P)—Fifty railroad presidents, admitting "the emergency which exists as to the credit and income of the railroads," recommended today a study of freight rates, with a view to readjusting and revising them to provide additional revenue.

In the name of their organization,
the Association of Railway Executives, they adopted a resolution instructing the six rate groups in this country to start at once on a determination of how possible recovery
of revenues may be brought about.

While in some cases there might be downward revisions to afford more equitable competition in the transportation of certain commodities, it was understood that a general shift upward would be sought.

It was agreed there would be no rate reductions. The executives said their wish was for relief from losses
in revenue since 1922 due to what they termed a "whittling" at the rate structure.

Out of their four large items of expense, they said, their taxes are increasing, interest charges fixed and maintenance reduced to the limit.

Spokesman said "it was the opinion of all that wage-cutting would simply continue the vicious circle."

The carriers hope for a rate re-

Hardman Urges Large Plantation Owners To Give Away Idle Georgia Lands for Cultivation

CUT IN GAS BILLS SHOWN AT HEARING

Reduction Revealed in Amounts Paid by Those Fighting Rate Increase.

Evidence to show that there has been a decrease in individual gas bills
of Atlanta gas consumers, brought out on cross-examination of witnesses opposing an increase of rates petitioned for by the Atlanta Gas Light Company, featured the third day's hearing Friday before the Georgia public service commission.

Testimony of Professor Henry E.
Riggs, of Ann Arbor, Mich., valuation expert of the commission, disclosed a difference of approximately $500,000
in the valuation fixed by the gas company and that made by the witness.
The chief item in dispute was the amount of "working capital" necessary to the company's operation. Professor Riggs fixing this at $270,000 and R.
C. Hoffman, Jr., vice president of the Southern Cities Public Service Company, insisting upon a minimum of $450,000.

Professor Riggs, head of the civil engineering department of the University of Michigan, and Dr. John J.
Bauer, former lecturer at Cornell,
Princeton and Columbia, enlivened
the monotony of a tedious technical day's proceedings just before the luncheon recess Friday.

Questioned on Meters.
Dr. Bauer, who was cross-examining Professor Riggs, was seeking information as to the relative merits of a service charge, a phase of the inquiry about which he had not testified on direct examination.

"Let's assume," Dr. Bauer asked Riggs, "that meter readings in Atlanta are similar to those in other cities in which we have made surveys; isn't the meter cost to the company lower in apartment districts
than in scattered suburban home districts?"

"Doctor," replied the Ann Arbor, Mich., expert, "let's assume that you

MACON, Ga., May 8.—(P)—Governor L. G. Hardman today suggested that plantation owners of Georgia aid in the development of the state's idle lands by setting off 100-acre tracts and giving them to "people who will cultivate them."

Speaking at the Middle Georgia Cotton Festival here, the chief executive said he was ready to follow his own suggestion. Such action would increase the population of Georgia and the activity of the population we now have," he said.

The governor dwelt upon uses for cotton, diversification of crops and the use of idle lands.

He set the place of cotton as chief of all products on the farm on account of its value as a cash crop, but he said
it should be raised by those who obtained their living from other products on the farm.

"I do not believe any product will take the place of cotton as a money crop," the governor said. People talk of not "having a one-crop system and it is true that the only way you can control cotton is to reduce it by producing something else. Make the farm self-sustaining, let the farmer own his own warehouse and keep his cotton on his farm. Then he can control the cotton unless he owes so much bank that he can sell only when the banker tells him to."

Governor Hardman spoke particularly of reforestation as a means of getting additional cash. Hardwood particularly would bring in a good return, he said. He made reference to dogwood and persimmon wood for making shuttles and walnut for furniture and other purposes.

"By putting waste land into trees,"
he advised, "you will not interfere with the regular farm program and will get money out of land that is doing nothing."

When you think of the taxes for 1930 as the largest sum that has ever been paid in, there does not seem to be much depression," added the governor. $32,000,000 was paid into the treasury.

Tijuana, Mexican Gambling Resort, Under Martial Law After Murder

SAN DIEGO, Cal., May 8.—(P)— Tijuana, Mexican border resort town noted for its gambling games, was under martial law tonight following the death of Roque Sabido Quijano,
who was shot when political enemies
attacked Mayor Miguel Angel Menendez and his bodyguard last night.

Quijano, secretary to the mayor,
died here today from wounds which Tijuana labor leaders said were inflicted by the mayor during the attack by seven men. They said the mayor drew his gun and it was discharged during the struggle.

The assault was made after Mayor Menendez addressed a meeting at the labor temple in the Lower California town. Jose Ricard, aviator, and Dr.
L. J. Robert, in the party, were severely beaten. The mayor was uninjured.

The attack was said to have been the result of dissatisfaction with the appointment of Mayor Menendez, who succeeded Rafael Sierra Dominguez three days ago. Tijuana officials said Dominguez resigned because gov-

CAR LEAVES ROAD NEAR GAINESVILLE, HITS EMBANKMENT

Prominent Baptist Pas-

Windshield To Instant

lantans Carried to Hospital.

PARTY COMING HERE FROM MURPHY, N. C.

Kirkwood Baptist Minis- ter Had Conducted Fu- neral Services for Grand- daughter of Neighbor.

The Rev. Jesse L. Jackson, 53, pastor of the Kirkwood Baptist church for the past 18 years, and one of the most prominent ministers in the Southern Baptist convention, was instantly killed Friday night 13 miles north of Gainesville, when the car he was driving hurtled from the road and crashed into an embankment. Five other Atlantans, riding in the car,
were seriously injured.

The accident occurred, according to reports, when Mr. Jackson lost control of the machine and it left the highway. He was thrown through the windshield when the auto crashed into the embankment.

The other Atlantans in the car were Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Steele; 107 Howard street, N. E., and their son, Richard F. Steele, 21; Miss Georgia Mae Stovall, 21, and J. A. Hall, 74, father of Mrs. Steele. All were seriously injured and taken to a Gainesville hospital.

All the injured, save Richard Steele,
were unable to talk of the accident
Friday night. Steele stated that Mr.
Jackson lost control of the car when something seemed to break in the steering apparatus, and that before he could halt it, the machine had plunged from the pavement. They were traveling at a moderate rate of speed, he said. Mechanics who surveyed the wreckage of the car were unable to ascertain just what caused the tragedy.

En Route From Funeral.

The fatal crash occurred when Mr.
Jackson and his party were en route to Atlanta from Murphy, N. C. The minister had been to Murphy to conduct funeral services for the small daughter of Dr. LeRoy Steele, pastor of the Murphy Baptist church. Mr.
and Mrs. J. A. Steele were the grandparents of the child. Mr. Hall, its great-grandfather, and Richard Steele
its uncle.

Mrs. Jackson also was in church affairs at the time the accident occurred. She was attending choir practice at the Kirkwood church, just across the street from their home at 110 Howard street, N. E. She was not told of the accident until her return, when Dr. Louis Newton and Dr. W. H. Major, close personal friends of Dr. Jackson, informed her of the tragedy. She collapsed on hearing of her husband's death and was under the care of a physician Friday night.

Mr. Jackson was born in Nottawau-gan.

Round Table Talks about Food

FOODS THAT ARE FRIENDLY TO BEAUTY

BY KATHLEEN MARY QUINLAN.

What are the materials from which radiant beauty of skin, bright eyes and glossy hair can be compounded? They are of two kinds. Some are sealed in dairy fats and viols; others are out in the gardens and fields, and later colorfully grouped in the fruit and vegetable markets.

This season is particularly rich in the ore which individual alchemy will convert into delicate bloom on the cheeks, stary sparkle in the eyes, sheen and lustre of lovely hair. You have already guessed that I allude to the spring vegetables which secrete the minerals and vitamins so essential to health . . . the first condition of beauty.

If I were cultivating a beauty, her diet would include a generous proportion of seasonal vegetables. There would be spinach about twice a week . . . for the sake of its iron content. . . . mean spinach cooked in its own steam, in a covered pan, so that all the mineral content would be preserved. All green vegetables should be included in this way, whenever possible, and without the addition of baking soda; otherwise vitamins are destroyed and the valuable minerals dissolved. When it is necessary to use water it should be the minimum.

Parsley is said to be even richer in iron than spinach, and parsley used as a garnish gives added flavor to meat and fish, besides lending a dressy touch that is tempting to jaded appetites.

Tomatoes, being particularly versatile and delicious whether eaten raw or cooked, would make frequent appearances in this diet . . . rich, ripe, red tomatoes, which, with the citrus fruits, rank as the best source of the precious Vitamin C. As a substitute for the tomato I would have salads of cold raw and green peppers as frequently as possible, and occasionally raw carrots.

Raw carrots . . . yes. You recall the old-time story of persons who ate carrots for the complexion? With an appropriate dressing, raw carrots are very appetizing and dietitians give some excellent recipes for their preparation. I would include cooked carrots, too, at least once a week.

Once a week I would also have asparagus. One needs no inducement to eat this delicious vegetable . . . but its mineral contribution will provide an excuse for the person who must have a practical reason for everything included on the menu. String beans and peas, too, are good sources of vitamins and minerals.

I have been asked about potatoes . . . whether I would cut them out of the diet entirely as too fattening. I would not go to the other extreme and include them with EVERY meal. Neither would I serve two varieties, the white and the sweet at one sitting. One baked or boiled potato or a few of the delicious small spring varieties will not prove harmful or too fattening, if the diet is correctly balanced.

Another point that should be remembered in this attempt to please the man is to please yourself, too, in the manner of making the cream. For household use the moussé—richest of all ice creams—is perhaps the easiest to make, whether electrical refrigeration or the old method is used. One simply whips the cream, adds the crushed fruit and sugar and packs the moussé away. In three hours it is set and ready to serve.

A half pint bottle of whipping cream, a cup of crushed fruit, a tiny speck of salt and sugar to taste will make an ample quantity for five or six. Strawberry moussé is particularly delicious. For a less expensive dessert, use crushed bananas, crushed apricots or shredded pineapple.

When you Boil Fish.

When properly prepared, boiled fish

is most delicately flavored by reason of the seasoning used; merely boiled

in salted water it becomes rather tasteful. The following is the seasoning used by a well-known chef when preparing boiled trout or any other fish that is suitable:

To the water in which the fish is to be cooked add one carrot, one onion,

one celery root, two bay leaves and salt. Boil until the liquid is well flavored—perhaps for an hour or more.

Then introduce the fish and simmer

until the flesh will leave the bones easily. Season to taste, place on a platter and serve with cream sauce.

PLEASING THE MAN

BY CHLOE JAMISON.

There is a tendency . . . the part of many wives to believe that ancient tale about pie as a man's preference for dessert. Laboriously they set to work and bake them, so many times each week.

Yet the up-to-date cafe or hotel dining room, where a careful check is kept of what is most frequently ordered

by their best customers—the business men—would reveal that pie

is more frequently preferred

by the men.

One reason for this is doubtless the man's habit of ordering a substantial

main dish for his meal. This leaves

him with a wish for something lighter

than pastry for the finishing touch.

At one hotel where the dining room

seethes with prosperous-looking men at noon, frozen egg nog is never off the list. In that house it is more standard than vanilla cream. Many men order

mixed ice creams—a ball of this and that—with as much anticipation

as they did when they were young sters; while others hew to the line and invariably order chocolate, or vanilla

with a sundae dressing. Usually men are content to eat their cream unaccompanied by cake . . . a tip for the home cook who would be saved that extra labor and expense.

Another point that should be remembered in this attempt to please

the man is to please yourself, too, in the manner of making the cream. For household use the moussé—richest of all ice creams—is perhaps the easiest

to make, whether electrical refrigeration

or the old method is used. One simply whips the cream, adds the crushed

fruit and sugar and packs the moussé away. In three hours it is set and ready to serve.

cream, a cup of crushed fruit, a tiny

six. Strawberry moussé is particularly delicious. For a less expensive

dessert, use crushed bananas, crushed

apricots or shredded pineapple.

AT THE CHILDREN'S TABLE

BY MARY HOPE NORRIS.

Founder, Mothers' Radio Round Table Club.

Modern science has shown us that the foods that children eat have much to do with the health and structure of their teeth.

In fact, even the teeth of an adult can be improved by proper diet.

The foods that are necessary for correct bone and tooth structure are

our old friends . . . milk, leafy vegetables, butter, eggs, whole wheat bread,

coarse cereals, and fruit. Of course

cod-liver oil and orange or tomato juice should also be part of the young child's diet.

The relation between diet and good

teeth goes back to the mother's diet

before the baby is born . . . for the development of the infant's teeth begins six months before he arrives. At birth he is equipped not only with his first teeth, which are formed and partially hardened underneath his gums, but the beginning of the second set, as well. Therefore, the foundation for good teeth depends upon the diet of the mother, long before the baby is born.

Her food should contain these most necessary tooth and bone-building

materials . . . lime, phosphorus and magnesium. To continue to provide them after the little one arrives,

strained vegetables and cereals should be introduced into the diet while the child is less than a year old, and as he reaches the runabout age, he must have a well-chosen diet of mixed foods.

The healthy child of two years or more can eat a much larger variety of food than once was thought good for him. Just the other day our government issued a message to mothers of young children, stating that it means

the carefully planned and properly prepared, healthy, normal two-year-old can eat almost anything that the rest of the family does. Of course

foods that are fried or too highly seasoned should not be prepared for the family, if the children are going to eat them.

This same announcement recommends very ripe bananas for children of runabout age . . . also cabbage,

cooked quickly until tender, and then creamed. That probably surprises you, and you are at a loss to know how to prepare this hearty vegetable in a way that is delicate enough to serve to children. So I am going to give you a very special recipe for creamed cabbage.

Creamed Cabbage.

Heat three cups of milk, and cook

one quart of shredded cabbage in it for two minutes. Blend four tablespoons flour, four tablespoons melted

butter and one teaspoon of salt. Add this to the milk and cabbage. Cook

for three or four minutes, stirring constantly. When cooked in this way the cabbage retains its crispness, also its delicate flavor and color, and children are very fond of it.

Hot Sauce for Salad.

Put into a sauce pan three tablespoons of vinegar, three egg yolks,

a pinch of salt, pepper, sugar, and English mustard. Mix well and add a half pint of heavy cream. Beat all together briskly, then cook in a double boiler until it thickens, whisking

all the while it is cooking. Add more seasoning, if desired.

Many cooks specify a mayonnaise

dressing for lobster salad, and I, too,

sometimes use it. But for one particularly fine recipe, called Lobster

Salad Lattard, a modified dressing is required.

At the Plaza only fresh lobster are used in the preparation of a recipe,

but I rarely have tried it. Mr. Lattard

is not always feasible to get the live

lobster. In such cases a good brand of canned lobster meat will suffice.

For the dressing, mix both salad

sauce and mayonnaise as given:

Lobster Salad Lattard.

Cook three medium-sized lobsters,

remove the meat from the shell and cut it into dice. (Or use the equivalent in canned lobster.) Put in a bowl

and add to the meat a bunch of water

creamed, coarsely chopped without the stems; also a tablespoon of chopped

chives and beets, a tablespoon of carrots, a pinch of salt, a pinch of pepper, a pinch of sugar, a pinch of vinegar, a pinch of lemon juice, a cup of chili sauce and a half cup of mayonnaise. Season with celery

salt, paprika and Tarragon vinegar.

Serve very cold on leaves of lettuce.

COCA-COLA BOTTLERS

WIN SUIT FOR $15,000

A verdict in favor of the defendant,

the Coca-Cola Bottling Company, was on record Friday in city court of Atlanta after a jury decided against the $15,000 claim of Mrs. E. W.

Smith. Attorneys for the company charged that Mrs. Smith put a dead

mouse into a bottle and switched it for a bottle purchased from a soft drink stand.

Mrs. Smith claimed that she had finished drinking half of the contents of the bottle when she discovered a dead mouse in the bottle. Counsel for the company charged a frame-up,

and alleged that the plaintiff put the mouse in the bottle and then changed

the mouse bottle for one bought at a stand in the municipal market. Marion Smith and Harold Hirsch represented the Coca-Cola Bottling Company, and Spratlin, Whidden and Williford represented the plaintiff.

SAVING WITHOUT SCIMPING

BY EDITH M. SHAPCOTT

Nutrition Consultant, The Home Making Center, New York.

Nutrition Consultant, The Home Making Center, New York.

Watch sales, know brands, select proper sizes, and keep track of seasons. These are the watchwords that make the saving without the scimping out of canned goods.

I agree with whoever suggests that paying 25 cents for canned string beans when twice the quantity of the fresh article could be procured for the same price is false economy.

I go further than that and call it a lack of good common sense. Fortunately for those who depend upon us for their good eating habits, the springtime just naturally makes us desire fresh fruits and vegetables.

But that doesn't mean that we should let our emergency shelf of canned goods run low.

Just a few examples of economical canned goods buying: How we all like cream of tomato soup. And yet if we had to use fresh tomatoes for it, this dish would be a rare occurrence instead of the popular soup it is, for even during the short time that tomatoes are in season, the fresh food is more costly than the preserved.

Then, too, to which we referred in a previous article. Since they take three or four hours of cooking, the fuel consumed makes them expensive, not to mention the time devoted to watching them. The canned variety is always a good buy. But, again, watch your brand. Although much enjoyed during its short season, asparagus cans ideally and makes a good all-year-around vegetable when served with Hollandaise sauce, a white sauce or in a mixed vegetable salad, or as a salad all by itself. Baker beans are most popular among the canned goods, partly because baking beans at home is almost an all-day job. Then come meats and fish. The initial cost of these, even of chicken, is actually smaller than that of the fresh food, and the chicken in particular, is useful when only a small quantity is needed for a convalescent or when some other emergency arises.

Among fruits, peaches are enjoyed by everyone during the four seasons, although available during only one. Canning brings them within the price range of all of us. But when serving peaches, alone remember to buy the half fruit; over blanch mange or custard use the sliced variety. Then watch the sizes. . . . a most important economy when purchasing canned goods. The same notes apply to pineapple. Buy the sliced fruit for dessert, the diced fruit for salads and the shredded type for sherbets, puddings and similar dishes.

These are just a few hints that will help you to save pleasantly on canned goods. In the last few years the unreasonable prejudice against these foods is fast dying out, because at one time or another we all have found them very good and very useful.

Then, too, we know that the government protects us well from adulterated canned foods, and the sanitary laws are strictly enforced during the canning season.

MAN JAILED AFTER FIVE YEARS OF FREEDOM
JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., May 7. (UP)—James L. Dye sits in a cell at the Missouri penitentiary and wonders just why official red tape had to be broken when it looked sufficiently tangled up.

Dye was sentenced in St. Louis for robbery, on December 10, 1925. He was let out on bond while the supreme court studied his appeal. The sentence was affirmed, but court attaches forgot to notify St. Louis officials. But after more than five years, when Dye had decided that he had been forgotten, and was not a bit worried about the fact, a curious St. Louis official noticed the unfinished record, made an investigation, and caused Dye's arrest.

Now the St. Louis authorities are checking old records to see how many more of the town's citizens should be with Dye but have been kept out of prison by similar cases of official forgetfulness.

CHATS WITH A POPULAR HOSTESS

BY MRS. OLIVER HARRIMAN

Chairman, Exposition of Women's Arts and Industries.

Week-end parties have always been gala occasions, and for several reasons. They come at the only time during the week when business men can be present, consequently the mixed social entertainment of any society community is planned for them.

Strangely, week-end parties today differ very little from those of the past. They are of course very much more informal than in the old days, but the length of the party is still the same. . . . from Friday evening until Sunday evening. The party usually breaks up late on Sunday afternoon to allow the men to return to town so that they may be fresh for work on Monday morning.

The main features of the week-end—the formal dinner on Friday and Saturday evenings, the special luncheon on Saturday and the quiet luncheon on Sunday—are the same as they have always been, but the observance of these three events, in the routine of the modern week-end there is much more exercise and the conduct of guests is much more informal and natural than in previous years.

The hostess of today makes her plans so that there is something in her program that will appeal to every one whom she has invited. She may even say when extending an invitation to a guest that a party is going to be given by Mrs. So-and-so on Saturday, and they are invited to attend, but should the guest desire to remain at home, she will not mind.

Cocktail parties have to some extent replaced the tea, but that really depends upon the guests invited for the week-end. If the crowd is young and modern, then the cocktail serves hot tails instead of tea; but if her guests are less modern and prefer tea, then she serves that and does not offer cocktails. Usually it is possible to provide both forms of refreshment.

GREECE SUPPRESSES PANGALOS REVOLUTION

ATHENS, Greece, May 8. (UP)—A revolutionary movement sponsored by General Theodoros Pangalos, former dictator, has been suppressed, the government authorities said today.

An army officer said to have been a follower of Pangalos, colonel of political figure in recent Greek history, with a friend created disturbances in the Place Concord.

The men were arrested. They were found carrying a quantity of dynamite. A former aide-camp of Pangalos also was arrested following the demonstration.

Troops aided the police in guarding public buildings. They were to bomb various public buildings and a hotel owned by Premier Eleutherios Venizelos.

The revolutionaries were allowed to gather. However, a government airplane flew over, giving the signal prematurely, and hundreds of police, concealed about the square, charged, arresting the demonstrators.

General Pangalos, it was recalled, seized the government in 1925 by force, setting up a dictatorship. He ruled as a dictator without a national assembly for a few months, but was overthrown.

On October 30, last year, a large number of his followers were arrested, charged with planning another coup d'etat. Pangalos himself was arrested the same day.

NETTLETON REPORTS STEADY CONDITIONS

Robert S. Cook, of Syracuse, N. Y., assistant to the president of the A. E. Nettleton Shoe Company, was in Atlanta Friday conferring with Marshall Walker, representative of the company in this territory.

Mr. Cook is on a tour of the south visiting the company's shops and customers. He has been to Norfolk, Va.; Louisville, Ky.; Nashville, Tenn.; Houston and Dallas, Texas, and New Orleans. From here he goes to Washington.

Optimistic over business conditions, Mr. Cook says that orders are running on a level with last year and predicted that by fall the factory would be operating on a full time basis.

Mr. Cook said that he had found the merchants in the south optimistic and that all are looking for better business by fall.

DRINKING SOCIETY AT WILLIAMS DISBANDED
WILLIAMSTON, Mass., May 8. (AP)—The Purple Key Society of Williams College, exclusive body formed more than 30 years ago as a drinking society, today had passed into oblivion. At a meeting unmarked by ceremony the membership voted last night to abolish the society.

For many years election to the Purple Key was regarded as a mark of social distinction. Prior to the advent of prohibition the society had two branches, the one known as the purple cups and the other by red caps. Later both groups were consolidated into the organization that continued to function until last June when the members voluntarily suspended activities and finally decided last night to disband.

FAVORITE RECIPES OF FAMOUS WOMEN

MRS. THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

How often we find that the busier the woman, and the more important in life's scheme of things, the more certain she is to find time to attend to the lesser courtesies which bring pleasure to those who are quite outside her immediate circle.

In the midst of the active life she leads as the wife of the governor of Porto Rico, Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt takes time to give to the women of America and sister countries not only her favorite recipe, but a few notes on other dishes that are liked by the

her favorite dish:

Arroz con Pollo.
Clean and cut in small pieces two or three chickens and fry them in a pan with a tablespoonful of lard, until they are golden brown. Add salt, tomatoes and parsley, then several Spanish peppers. Now add rice at the rate of a pound and a half for 12 people, and after the rice has taken on a golden color, add a scant quart and a half of water (more or less according to the quantity of rice), and cook slowly, keeping it covered so as to preserve the aroma. If desired, throw in several chopped olives.

Glass Service for Supper.
The informal supper is always the signal for originality in table appointments as well as in menus and recipes. At this dainty meal it is quite smart to dispense with china and use an all-glass service. . . . one of the lovely tinted ensembles, or a clear etched crystal service, if you prefer.

By her friendly letter she fairly carries us with her to Porto Rico, and makes us feel the hospitality of her own home there, as well as the spicy, foreign charm of foods that are most popular in the island.

Mrs. Roosevelt writes. . . "I am glad to enclose my favorite recipe. It

"A pound of peanuts represents as much nutriment as you get from three and a half pounds of beef-steak."

—Dr. Wm. A. Brady

He Further Says:—

"Peanuts are not injurious to one's health. They should be more commonly used as part of the ordinary daily dietary because they are as economical as any wholesome food can be."

"PEANUTS and soy beans are the only vegetable foods that can be thought of as supplying complete protein in the diet."

NURSES RE-ELECT MISS E. C. BURGESS

New York Educator
Heads League Again.
Convention Here Closes.

Miss Elizabeth C. Burgess, of New York city, was re-elected president of the National League of Nursing Education Friday afternoon in the concluding session of that body's 37th annual convention, which opened here Monday at the Biltmore hotel. Miss Burgess, who is associate professor of nursing education at Teachers' College, Columbia University, has been president of the league for several years.

Vice presidents are: Miss Effie J. Taylor, of New Haven, Conn., and Miss Julie C. Tebo, of New Orleans. Miss Stella Goostray, of Boston, was re-elected secretary and Miss Marian Rottman, of New York, was re-elected treasurer. Directors are Miss Sally Johnson, and Miss Isabel Stewart, of New York; Miss Laura R. Logan, of Chicago, and Miss Daisy Dean Uch, of Oakland, Cal.

The new committee on nominations for 1932 is composed of the following: Miss Blanche Blackman, of Springfield, Mass., chairman; Miss Celia Crane, of Columbus, Ohio; Miss Caroline M. Rankin, of St. Paul, Minn., and Miss Jessie Murdock, of Jersey City, N. J.

Resolutions deploring the death of Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, from whom "the nursing profession has through a period of 48 years been the recipient of help and encouragement," were adopted by members of the league in closing the convention. Resolutions were also adopted thanking Atlanta newspapers and other organizations whose assistance helped to make the convention a success.

William H. Burton, professor of education at the University of Chicago, was principal speaker at the session Friday morning. Dr. Burton spoke on "The Administration of Supervision." Miss Nellie V. Hawkins, dean of the school of nursing at Western Reserve University, Cleveland, presided.

Methods of teaching the student nurse were discussed Friday afternoon in a session at which Miss Lillian Alexander, president of the Georgia State Organization for Public Health Nursing, presided. The convention closed at 4:30 o'clock Friday afternoon with the introduction of new officers. The 1932 convention will be held in San Antonio, Texas.

CONTRACT BARS INSURANCE CHANGE

Proposal to change the insurance contract carried by the City Employees' Association on 1,200 men and women working for the borough of Atlanta struck a snag Friday when City Attorney James L. Mayson ruled that the association must keep the present agreement in force until its expiration in August.

At the present time the Missouri State Life Insurance Company holds the contract on the group insurance carried by the association, but a reduction was offered by the Prudential company, it was reported at the meeting.

Ten Times a Widow, Woman, 61, Weds Again

URANIA, La., May 8.—(UP)—If at first you don't succeed in finding true love, you might as well give up, thought Mrs. Carolyn Paschall, 61, who sought a second husband today. Mrs. Paschall, of Tampa, Fla., today became the eleventh in the line which began with Macdonald and continued on through Walters, Bronson, Burgess, Chevalier, Gardin, White, Luigi, Hatfield, and Willis.

Mrs. Paschall thinks her latest husband will prove more ideal than her late ones. What she wants, she said, is "true love, not a stove that smokes, a parrot that swears, or a cat that stays out all night."

However, she cherishes the memory of C. E. Bronson, who in 1908 was killed in an automobile accident. Three times she has been widowed and seven times divorced since her first venture at sixteen. That lasted 14 years, a record.

LISTS ARE CLOSED FOR COUNTY RACE

Seventeen aspirants for county commission to succeed the late Edward H. Inman approached the barrier Friday as entry lists closed. The race will take place May 23.

Sam T. Allen, of College Park, formerly one of the chief deputies of the late Thomas Miller, Fulton county clerk, was the latest entrant in the field, pushing the total number of qualified candidates to 17, believed to be the largest number ever qualified for any single commissioner's race in this county.

Every one of those who entered the field has declared his intention to remain in the race, and prospect of an old-fashioned campaign, with the radio added for good measure, was in the offing Thursday night.

George F. Longino, also of College Park, already has held several meetings, and Mayor Pro Tem, G. Everett Millican has opened headquarters and will go on the air at 10:30 o'clock tonight in his first public address of the drive. J. P. Wall, another leading contender, will open his campaign upon his return from South Carolina to visit his sister, who is ill.

W. Dewey Smith, attorney, with offices in the William-Oliver building, has been named campaign manager for Thomas J. Lewis, another contender, and has opened headquarters there, according to announcement Thursday night.

A total of 32,000 Fulton county residents are entitled to cast ballots in the election at which time all residents of the county lying outside the confines of the borough of Atlanta will decide whether the 2-1-2 mill special school tax shall be levied for county schools and whether a $500,000 bond issue shall be allowed for a county school building program.

Others qualified to make the race, in addition to Mr. Allen, Mr. Millican, Mr. Kingdon, Mr. Wall and Mr. Lewis are: Trammell Scott, Dr. George Brown, Dr. A. H. Cochran, Dr. Luther P. Baker, Albert V. Curran, W. L. Jone, William D. Newman, W. F. Rutherford, J. M. Barnwell, Paul M. Sikes, R. M. Wiley and Lee J. Howard.

Under the ruling of Mr. Mayson no action was taken at the session of representatives of various departments.

$3,740,148.39 DUE SCHOOLS OF STATE

An unpaid balance of $3,740,148.39 due the public schools of Georgia was detailed in a report of an audit of the school department delivered by State Auditor Tom Wisdom to Governor Hardman Friday. The state paid the schools, in 1930, $9,916,089.73.

Of this total paid the schools last year, $2,411,190.27 came from the state gasoline and gasoline tax fund. The remainder came out of the general treasury.

The Atlanta school system is due $64,274 for 1928 and $59,175 for 1929, a total of $123,452.

D. A. V. SPEAKERS ATTACK MELLON, G. O. P. POLICIES

was blamed by W. E. Tate, commander of the Atlanta chapter and past national commander, who acted as master of ceremonies, for an article in Collier's magazine on veterans' compensation and for the spirit expressed in the article. Foreign immigration also was pointed to as a menace by various speakers. Senator Harris attributing unemployment largely to this source.

400,000 Aliens in U. S. Mrs. F. W. Witholt, of Fort Valley, national president of the Women's Service League, said that "there are 400,000 aliens subject to deportation in this country, who are not only taking jobs away from American workers but are forming the nucleus for communist organizations in our factories, intent on wrecking our government."

Colonel R. W. Soper, medical officer in charge of the veterans' hospital at Augusta, voiced a similar warning, asserting that "inbred European populations are raising the average of mental diseases in the country to alarming proportions." "The state of Massachusetts," he added, "where south European immigration has been especially heavy, spends half its income in caring for mental diseases."

Attacking the statement that the veterans' relief measure was financially unwise, John M. Slaton, Jr., district manager of veterans' administration, stated that "it didn't cost the government a cent more; the money was already appropriated. And furthermore," he added, "I want to put the stamp of a lie on charges that the veterans are wasting their money. It goes for essentials."

Other speakers were Mrs. Cora B. Lamberton, national commander of the D. A. V. Women's Auxiliary; Alderman G. Everett Millican, representing Mayor James L. Key, who made the welcome address; Mrs. E. L.

SALVATION ARMY VISITORS ARRIVE

Hundreds of Salvation Army delegates from 15 southern states arrived in the city Friday night and will register this morning for the first convention of the southern territory to be held since its organization three and a half years ago. The convention opens at 4 o'clock this afternoon, when General Edward J. Higgins, of London, world commander of the army, will be greeted at the Terminal station on his arrival from Washington.

Registration of the 900 officers and delegates will begin this morning and continue until 3 o'clock in the afternoon, when a parade in honor of the world leader will be formed at the territorial headquarters, 54 Ellis street.

The convention will last through Tuesday and will be featured by two parades, a public reception on the part of leading Atlanta citizens to General Higgins at 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon at Keith's Georgia theater, and a reception for the general and his staff and the delegates by Governor L. G. Hardman at 1 o'clock Monday afternoon at the state capitol.

After his arrival this afternoon, General Higgins will confer with members of the press at the Biltmore hotel at 5 o'clock and at 7:30 o'clock tonight he and his wife will meet officers, delegates, recruits and former members of the army at a private reception. Army reception will be held at the Wesley Memorial church.

The parade today, which will terminate with a reception for General Higgins at the Terminal station, will form at 11 o'clock and move to Peachtree, thence to Broad, to Mitchell and then to the station.

With General Higgins and his wife will be Commissioner Alexander M. Damon, head of the southern division, and Adjutant Vincent Cunningham, editor of the War Cry, local officers, who met General Higgins in Washington. A representative of Mayor Key, probably Reuben Arnold, will greet General Higgins on behalf of Atlanta.

Major Norman S. Marshall, Atlanta officer, will be marshal of the parade and he will be assisted by Major C. J. Hickey and Major Ernest Holz.

Lincoln McConnell, of the Atlanta Convention and Tourist Bureau, Friday requested that Atlanta merchants display flags along the line of march of today's parade and on Monday, in observance of "Salvation Army Day" in Atlanta, that the city flag be flown at half-mast.

The committee chairman said other witnesses would be called in the near future and expressed confidence the committee would be able to make a report to the senate.

He said that the hearing yesterday when Miss Burroughs declined to testify that "We have evidence here of a violation of the corrupt practices act."

"It will be up to Bishop Cannon and Miss Burroughs whether they testify or not," said Nye. "It is possible that she may change her mind if she reaches the conclusion that she is being sacrificed to protect someone else."

"Evidence is already before the committee," said Nye, "that the receipt of this money was not reported on the last filing day, January 7, 1929. The subsequent report filed in February showing receipt of $12,200 and expenditure of that amount, has no legal standing in my opinion."

Dawes' Adopted Son Weds Honolulu Girl

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., May 8.—(AP)—Intimate college friends of Dana McChesney Dawes, adopted son of Ambassador Charles G. Dawes, today learned of his marriage April 11 to Miss Eleanor Dillingham, of Honolulu, in Belchertown. Dawes was a freshman at Williams College, and his bride was a sophomore at Mount Holyoke. Dawes left college April 25 and it was understood he and Mrs. Dawes are now on a honeymoon trip to Honolulu.

The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. Fred C. Rolfe, of the Belchertown Congregational church.

Mrs. Dawes was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Thompson Dillingham.

BRIDGE REBUILDING WORK IS EXPEDITED

Fulton county commissioners Friday afternoon moved to expedite reconstruction of the Broad street viaduct. The commission, at a special meeting, decided to request the city of Atlanta to send the bridge specifications to the county purchasing agent, accompanied by the city's check for $34,000, so that the county can undertake rebuilding of the bridge.

The commission voted Wednesday to participate in the bridge construction to the extent of $34,000, matching the city's appropriation. Under the county's plan, the county purchasing agent is authorized to advertise for bids, a process which will take a month, under the law.

Members of the commission pointed out that the procedure requested by the county is necessary as the county, due to its financial condition, must arrange to finance its part of the bridge cost.

Mayor James L. Key Friday afternoon announced that the city will take the matter under advisement, and he indicated that the city will cooperate in any way possible to assure early reconstruction of the viaduct.

The resolution adopted Wednesday by the commission pledged co-operation of the county with the city in rebuilding the bridge, provided that bids for the work be asked for jointly by the city and the county, and that the work be let to the lowest and best bidder. The resolution provided that the county will assume its part of the cost of the structure beyond the $34,000 already appropriated by the city, and with the understanding that the county's part will in no event exceed $34,000.

The Broad street bridge was constructed in 1896. Developments in transportation and corrosion have so weakened the bridge that Mayor Key has been forced to warn heavy traffic to discontinue its use. He has threatened to close it for public safety.

2 Negroes Save Man From Death Under Box Car

Two negroes Friday night were credited by police with having saved a white man from almost certain death beneath the wheels of a freight train at the Southern railroad crossing on Castley street.

According to a police report of the affair by Officer E. S. Acree, a white man by the name of Albert W. Johnson, 240 Cooper street, walked into the side of a moving box car, and as he fell was snatched to safety by two negroes who gave their names as Walter Brown, 514 Markham street, and James Lindsay, 332 Castley street. The front wheels of the car missed the man's head by inches, it was stated.

Johnson was taken to Grady hospital for examination, found to be injured and then taken to police station and locked up on charges of drunkenness.

CLUETT PEABODY BUYS PLANT SITE

Big Development Seen in Purchase of Building
Under Lease.

Plans of Cluett Peabody & Co., Inc., of Troy, N. Y., to increase materially the size and output of its Atlanta plants were indicated Friday when it was announced that the company had purchased the buildings housing one of its local plants, at 1822 Murphy avenue, S. W., and a large tract of ground surrounding the property at a cash price of $6,000.

The manufacturing plant had rented the Murphy avenue site for the last few years, holding an option for its purchase. It was learned that the deal was consummated in the offices of the Atlanta Title and Trust Company, through whose organization the titles were examined and insured.

Cluett Peabody and Co., Inc., operates two plants here, the one purchased and another at 1800 Murphy avenue, S. W. It is the ultimate plan, according to A. D. Guy, local plant manager, to unite the two plants and, practically, to double the present output of shirts. No definite plans have been announced, however, he stated. At present there are 500 persons on the pay roll, and the output is 2,500 dozen shirts a week. When the enlarged program has been placed into effect, the number of workers will be increased and approximately 4,000 dozen shirts manufactured each week, he said.

REFORMED GROUP OPPOSES MERGER

Dr. S. L. Morris, chairman of an ad interim committee of the Southern Presbyterian church to effect a union with the Associate Reformed Presbyterian church, will report at a general assembly to be held at Montreat, N. C., May 28, that the Associate Reformed Presbyterian church, which did not unite with the southern church, due to the fact that the latter is part of a larger proposed combine in which it does not wish to take part.

A movement has been started to bring about the combine of the five Presbyterian and Reformed churches. The Associate Reformed group does not hold with the larger movement, and has only considered joining with the southern group, but as the latter is part of the larger movement the Reformed group has decided it cannot take part, said Dr. Morris Friday night. However, he pointed out, in the event that the larger movement fails, the smaller combine will be considered again.

The text of his statement to the assembly was revealed Friday when it became known that, without committing the Southern Presbyterian church to organic union, the ad interim committee on union with other Presbyterian bodies will report at the general assembly that it is unwilling to close the door to further discussion.

Information on six points involved in the discussions will be presented to the assembly by the committee, a statement from Atlanta officers of the church said Friday.

These points include doctrinal standards and terms of subscription, spirituality of the church, boards and agencies, policy, educational institutions, and property rights.

FRANK DE MAYO GRANTED PAROLE

The department of justice, through the parole board, late Friday granted a parole to Frank (Chee-Chee) De Mayo, ordering his release from the Atlanta penitentiary, where he is serving a term for violation of the prohibition law. It was learned here through dispatches from Washington, D. C., that De Mayo was granted a parole.

De Mayo was given an aggregate sentence of three years on as many separate convictions in Tulsa, Topeka and Kansas City in 1929 and 1930. Known as "King of Middle West Bootleggers," De Mayo was brought to Atlanta a year ago because scores of his friends were constantly petitioning the Leavenworth warden in an effort to see him. It was reported at that time that De Mayo was operating a whisky and alcohol business from the confines of his cell.

He was sentenced from Kansas City on a liquor conviction and recently was granted a parole, his release being delayed while authorities sought to determine if he was wanted in other cities. Late Friday the board satisfied itself that no outstanding charges existed to prevent the parole. The original parole was granted to become effective May 7.

ATLANTA, GA., MAY 9, 1931.

THE SCHOOL REPORT.

The special commission of citizens, appointed by Mayor Key to consider improvements needed in the city public schools system, through its chairman, Walter H. Rich, has submitted a comprehensive and carefully digested report which deserves to be read in full by every citizen interested in our city schools.

The people have no more vital personal interest in public functions than that of the adequate education of their children. They have been often worried by the troubles of the city board of education in maintaining their current funds, in making imperative improvements, in supplying full facilities for the pupils, and for regulating the teaching forces and curricula of the grades in modern scientific fashion.

The commission that has now reported has covered the field of difficulties with striking completeness. It has made recommendations which come out of the studies of men of business wisdom and executive experience. The system recommended, if adopted by the city governors, will undoubtedly give to the people a consistent, economic, efficient pedagogic mechanism, facile to operate elastic to future needs, and yielding to the people's children educational equipment and advantages unexcelled by any in the Union.

The suggestion for a board of education reduced from 13 members elected from the wards to one of six members chosen by the electors of the city at large, and so related as to make the board a continuous body, retaining knowledge and experience in its majority at all times, has the sanction of operative good results in other cities whose school systems are so organized. It has the strong appeal of substantially divorcing the system from the interference and obstructive schemes of ward politicians.

The 30 per cent allocation of city revenues to the schools is not too much provided it is based on the approval of the other measures recommended by the board, particularly that as to a rigidly regarded budget system and its administration by a more compact board representing the whole city, and divorced from council control.

The contraction of the curriculum so that the course may be covered in 12 instead of 13 years has sound reasons to recommend it. The result would be a more consistent system for practical results, effect very considerable economies, and do no appreciable harm to those now taught in the infant departments.

Altogether the commission's report is illuminating, persuasive, and points the way to a better organized system, better serving the needs of our children.

If adopted and followed to its conclusions the result will be a school system that will be in every way satisfying.

If Governor Roosevelt's shot at the administration was a starter for his presidential nomination race it was a sure quick pick-up.

Those Portuguese geezers who revolted "agin the gov'ment" seem to have started something they couldn't finish. That is bad policy always.

WELCOME TO GEN. HIGGINS.

Today Atlanta becomes the four-day theater of the southern congress of the Salvation Army. The congress will be featured, by the presence of General Edward J. Higgins, of England, who is the present general of the army throughout the world. He was elected several years ago in a world convention of the army in London as the successor of General William Booth, the founder of this phenomenally successful organization of Christian crusaders.

Continuity, growth, conquest of the faith of the common people who in Christ's earthly career "heard Him gladly," and finally obtaining the favor and protection of kings, emperors, presidents and other national rulers, prove to the world that William Booth was an inspired apostle of the Christianity designed to envelop and convert the world eventually.

The history of the Salvation Army is one of the most romantic written in the annals of civilization and includes thrilling adventures in carrying the ensign of "Blood and Fire" through the slums of a thousand cities and the crowded swarms of half a hundred pagan and heathen lands.

The Army has worked with ceaseless zeal and unflinching devotion to rescue the lost, to rebuild the broken in soul and spirit, and to prove to a gainsaying world that in the divine economy "a man may be down, but he is never out!"

Their noble work, pursued with humility, unselfish consecration, and with no stigma of dishonor or scandal, has endeared the Salvationists to the people of the globe. Here in Atlanta they have won the hearts of all sincere Christians, who will join in honoring their distinguished general and those soldiers who are assembled from 15 southern states to gather from him fresh instruction and inspiration.

BUY A CARNATION.

"Carnation Day," on the streets of Atlanta, sponsored today by the faithful women's auxiliaries of the United Spanish War Veterans, should be memorable for the generous response of our citizens to their appeals on behalf of the unprovided disabled veterans and their needy dependents.

When Americans recall the alacrity and enthusiasm with which those men offered their lives and all for the country thirty-four years ago; how they produced the two greatest naval victories that history records, at Manila and off Santiago; how they won unequal battles at San Juan and in the Philippines; and how they gained for the nation the possession of the Philippine archipelago and the valuable island of Porto Rico, they can realize something of the as yet unpriced debt owing to those brave soldiers.

There are among our citizens many of the Spanish war veterans and their families who have been unusually distressed by the recent difficult economic conditions. The need for helping them to necessities of relief and comfort is acute and the carnation sale in their behalf should be widespread and generously patronized today.

FORGIVING WAR DEBTS.

Reports from the meeting of the International Chamber of Commerce at Washington say that informal conversations among the delegates are featured by much discussion of the relation of German reparations payments to the economic recuperation of Europe.

The main contention among the European delegates is that most of those reparations payments to England, France, Italy et alia are actually transferred to the United States in payment of the war debts of those nations to our government. Therefore, it is argued that our insistence upon those repayments is the real cause of the prevailing economic depression from which the whole of civilization, including ourselves, is suffering.

The "hence" of the argument is that the United States is "the devil in the machine" that is making it run slow and crooked and that we ought to relieve the economic pressure upon world finance and business by presenting to the allied nations the many billions of their debts to us and load them onto the labor and earnings of our own people.

In crass and perfectly brutal frankness those European financiers and politicians are almost demanding that the people of the United States shall pay the enormous hanger costs of their World War into which they forced us unwillingly, and at a staggering cost to us which we will be paying out of our own pockets to beyond the end of this century!

Yes, we have no cancelling machine for those war debts—not even our own people.

The Mexicans have successfully another time celebrated their independence, such as it is.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

Skyscraper Dug Up.

An ancient skyscraper is the latest discovery to be bared by archaeologists digging in the mountainous heap of accumulated debris, lava and earth that lies on top of the city of Herculaneum, buried under a Vesuvian eruption about the year 70 A. D.

The skyscraper is a four-story affair, an extraordinary height for those days, and the only one that has hitherto been located by the research parties. From pottery, frescoes and other remains about the ruins, the scientists make the deduction that it served as a huge community center with hot and cold baths in the basement, amusement parlors on the first floor, along with a restaurant and a dance hall on the top floor.

Next to this big hall lies a block of houses which belonged to extremely simple folk. There is no luxury in these houses, only the ordinary decorations of decent middle-class families, and the pathetic traces of domestic life, such as a child's bed in an upper room and a little cupboard containing cups and plates and the carbonized remains of fruit and biscuits.

After previous attempts, which were largely devoted to digging up statues and other portable items and carting them off to museums, a new system, under supervision of the Italian king, himself a distinguished archaeologist, aims at the preservation of the outline of the city and the spot by shoring up crumbling walls, carefully securing carbonized human remains within sheets of plate glass, and repairing and restoring decorations and flaking-off frescoes. Herculaneum is generally regarded as having been one of those luxurious seaside resorts that aroused the anger of Horace and other poets of the severe old order in the first years of the empire. To the little sunlit town with its marble inlaid pavements, many wealthy Romans came to spend the winter months. It was easily accessible from the capital, 100 miles away by the Via Appia.

It was thought at the time the excavations started a year ago that the fact of having been a resort city would probably account for a rich yield in treasures stored up there by the retired merchants and politicians of the imperial city. So far these expectations have been realized.

Four immense statues have been located and removed from the ruins. They represent the Emperor Trajan in the act of sacrificing to the gods, secondly a statue of Augustus, thirdly a Roman deity, and a statue of "Plenty," showing a woman returning from the harvest fields laden with corn sheaves.

Some of the traces discovered of the music that reigned in the city that day are the piled up corpses, carbonized and petrified, of citizens, men, women and children, who sought refuge in the temples of the gods. Horses, dogs and cattle lie about in a wild, fantastic stampede, as on the day when they sought to escape the boiling flood.

Excavators daily come upon extremely poignant scenes. Premier Mussolini was present not long ago when a bedroom was brought to light, containing a figure of a mother bending over a small bed in which the remains of two children were found.

Health Talks

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

STRYCHNINE THE CHILD POISON.

In various myths, legends or ancient religions the sacrifice of a child was demanded.

In Yankeland the prevailing religion is the demand for a child to be used once a week somewhere in the United States an innocent young child, usually the child of poor, ignorant parents, is sacrificed in order to keep the business men going as usual. I refer to the "accidental" poisoning of children with strychnine.

We dollar-worshipping Americans are fond of fine language, and to be told by a professional orator or statesman how great is our concern for the welfare of children, not merely little things everywhere, even the miserable offspring of our lower caste working people, but the noblest of our nation, the child of the future, is a phrase about the babbling baby of the honest working man being the potential unknown soldier of the next big slaughter, or something like that. I have generously paid the bill for a big conference of all the gifted bull shooters and job creators in the child health racket, in gathering in which each politician of his man gets the floor for as many minutes as his importance justifies and all sorts of fine programs are proposed but never taken into effect, at least until the country's business interests have examined them and given their sanction.

How could there be no ordinance, not even a pretense of any determination on the part of these great lovers of children to put a stop to the cruel murder of innocents by strychnine surreptitiously administered? Why does a civilized community permit the manufacture, sale and even the distribution to the public of nostrums containing deadly quantities of strychnine, nostrums which cruelly kill many innocent children, in containers which bear not the slightest hint that the contents are poisonous? The reason why our great leaders in child welfare are silent about this hideous business is perfectly obvious—they know which side their bread is buttered on. They prefer to dwell on vague generalities and ignore the glaring facts of business. To say or do anything that would cut down some wealthy scoundrel's nostrum trade is not "constructive economy." If your soft job depends on a subsidy from the wealthy scoundrel, directly or indirectly paid, why would he be a sap to agitate for anything so "realistic" as an ordinance or law to prohibit the incorporation of strychnine in food or medicine without a proper poison label to warn the purchaser or user of the danger? We should have such a law, applying not only to "patent medicines" or proprietary remedies but, of course, to any medicines prescribed or dispensed by physicians, just as the present anti-narcotic regulations do.

While such a law would not save all the children that are sacrificed in the worship of the almighty dollar it would at least save a considerable number of lives. In the long run even the nostrum business would gain by it, for naturally many of the children saved would grow up to become consumers of tonics and laxatives containing strychnine.

Letters From a Bald-Headed Dad to a Flapper Daughter

BY ROBERT QUILLEN

My dear Louise:

So far as I know, you have no ambition to be the belle of the ball and the envy of all beholders, but I assume that you have a normal girl's normal desire to be liked by creatures in pants.

Of course, if my assumption is correct, it may be that I can lend you a helping hand.

Your sex isn't as truthful or as "square" as men are. I could give you the proof, but it isn't necessary.

Anyway, it is nothing to quarrel about, for neither truth-telling nor honesty is natural to our race. We must learn our ethics as we learn to walk and make speech.

By no means do I advise and learned to practice these necessary rules and regulations, they told themselves they were doing it solely because of their inherent decency, but as a matter of fact, they played the game according to Hoyle because they were afraid of being socked on the jaw if they didn't.

When women got out of the harem and ceased to be the cattle, they had to live in a man-made world by man-made rules—many of which seemed foolish.

They had inherited tendency to respect good sportsmanship; they did not absorb masculine standards of fairness in infancy; and they felt no obligation to respect rules made for them by mere males.

Moreover, they had the advantage of knowing they could be unfair—that is, break man's rules—without having their teeth knocked out.

That, my dear, explains the disregard of rules and the tendency to hide behind a fib so common to your sex. For long ages, tears, subtlety and deceit were your only weapons.

But men—though their own respect for rules is largely a fear of the rod—still measure women by the ideal standard prepared for themselves, and adore you most when you have the most manly virtues.

Fooling a man is nothing to brag about. Any nit-wit with vacant doll eyes can do it. And "breaking a date" is no more commendable than any other form of lying.

A go pointed such things and still hold the affection of lads who get their spending money from dad; but she won't walk down the aisle with a regular guy who is destined to boss an industry or a nation.

Love, DAD.

The Conning Tower

BY F. P. A.

The Desert Bells.

More strange, more clear than in campanules swinging

Or afar in the foam,

Through the desert years he could hear them eerily ringing.

The bells of home.

Gone again in gusts, yet ever again as he hearkened

Where the air endless neons loomed and darkened

Came the desert bells.

With the jagged night arowl, with the voices muttering

And the eyes past the fire

Lonely in the waste, O that clear, hand music uttering

More than desire.

O to wake, to find the world but a

With a dream in the night,

With the wide pale dawn no longer

stale derision

But the old delight.

"Is it gone, thy strength—have the tall

walls fallen to the leaguer,

Is the standard rent,

Strides the shadow by the runner's

side who was swift and eager

What way he went?

"Beyond palm, beyond place, beyond

any dream of disaster,

Any goal deferred,

While the body breath, while a spark in the mind is master,

There is music heard!"

So rang the bells through the darkness, clearly, faintly,

Past mirages gone,

Through the utter night of the soul,

now strong, now gently

The bells rang on.

Over league-long lion sand, in the sun

a torment,

In the night, a dread,

Where death towers in stars or all day

like a burning garment

The heat is spread,

As water to thirst, as the very water

of heaven

F'rom a waste defiled;

As the hand of a child in trust to one's hand is given,

As the eyes of a child;

Like the jubilant laughter of youth

when merely being

Seemed endless day,

Like the moon on a torrent, like moon-

mad waters fleeing,

Falling in spray;

Like the birds of dawn, like all birds

of the evening crying,

Plying the cloud,

Like the yearning of love toward love,

through the dark replying

With passion proud;

Like valor's shout to the charge on foes unnumbered,

With high-fung horn,

Like the voice to Lazarus, "Rise,"

whence he slumbered

But rose from the dead—

So rang the bells through the darkness, clearly, faintly,

Past mirages gone,

Through the utter night of the soul,

now strong, now gently

The bells rang on.

In Hollywood

BY MOLLY MERRICK

(Copyright, 1931, for The Constitution by the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)
HOLLYWOOD, Cal., May 8.—First member of the local colony to seek the Reno-vation is the pretty little "June," Lady Inverclyde, whose frequent luncheons with Lother Mendes, ex-husband of Dorothy MacKail, have marked theirs one of the romantic friendships of Hollywood which will soon blossom into an announcement.

It only requires six weeks in Reno these days; and it's only about 18 hours from here by fast motor and some five hours by air. Our divorces will undoubtedly be got there in future since the policy of closed doors, no information, and a certain isolation from fan curiosity will make Reno the mecca of the gelatine group.

June Inverclyde is tiny. She is the most pink and white version of the British type one could dream of. Pale brown hair combed as most English women wear it, with a side part and lightly waved. She wears pale pastel colors at night. Is slim and delicate. By day she affects variations of beige or startlingly non-like arrangements of navy or black.

Lother Mendes, who it is rumored will be her next husband, is a director of unusual ability. June has not appeared before the cameras of Hollywood as yet, although she had an unusual career on the British stage.

A local judge seemed quite amazed at the frank revelations on modern marriage made by Peggy Von Eltz, associated with motion pictures as actress and producer, to that in various capacities connected with script making. Peggy Von Eltz, who is very handsome in a janesque blond way, is a woman of honor by her husband's exposition of ideas on trial marriage when her husband accused her of being no fit person for the custody of his children because of her ideas.

The Hollywood engagement has long been considered one of the most modern expositions of love that may be found. In some cases the engagement has included a trial marriage. In many cases the trial marriage has been a success and has gone on into conventional matrimony. In less frequent cases it goes on the rocks.

Peggy Von Eltz considered her trial engagement to Joseph Moncre March so dignified a thing that she frankly confided it to her ex-husband. The both got frank in court as to what their ideas of things were. Too frank for her honor who felt that neither of them were to be benefited by open discussion of such matters and turned it all over to the court referee.

That is the way it goes in Hollywood 1931.

Ursula Parrott, arrived in Hollywood looking for a job. "If you don't mind vintage," said Laura Hope Crews, "you can have mine while you are here."

It is a sign of the high-reaching type. The tiny Parrott wears demure and mouse-like sits in one corner of it, high above the little low-slung sports cars. She calls herself the "first family of Hollywood." It looks like nothing so much as those ancient vehicles which draw up with all their pomp and circumstance before the Metropolitan Opera to load up with ladies in willow plumes and ermine coats (with ermine tails) to make dignified arrivals.

Local ladies are glad to see John McCormick out of circulation. This young man became so versed in the technique of fame that he usurped the privileges of the fair sex since his heart affairs were bruited on front pages almost every week. "Colleen or nothing" was his first slogan. "The simple life in monastic life." Then there was that notion about Dorothy MacKail which he didn't very thoroughly dismiss. And finally the Janet Gattis romance which is scheduled finally for the end of the film in Honolulu.

General Butler Ill.

PHILADELPHIA, May 8.—(P)—Major General Smedley D. Butler, of the marine corps, is back at his headquarters in Quantico, Va., under orders from a physician to rest a bit. The general has a slight cold which settled in his throat.

Negro Is Hanged.

MERIDIAN, Miss., May 8.—(P)—Cleveland Nelson, 19-year-old negro, was hanged by the state in the county jail this afternoon for the murder last year of Andrew Price, Lauderdale county white farmer.

Right of Officer To Shoot Debated by Law Institute

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(P)—Members of the American Law Institute failed to agree today on a proposed statute governing the right of an officer to kill and wound in making an arrest and laid the question aside for further consideration.

Two other proposed statutes dealing with the administration of criminal law were approved. One would give the judge the right to summon a material witness from another state, if the distance were not more than 1,000 miles.

The other would allow the judge, prosecuting attorney and defendant's attorney to comment on the fact that the defendant did not testify.

Major General Smedley Butler's attitude as director of public safety in Philadelphia was used as an argument for the proposed law on arrests of Francis Crowley and Rudolph Durringer in New York yesterday was used to point contentions against it.

As drawn, the proposed statute would prevent an officer from killing or wounding an offender attempting to escape only in cases involving felonies. Professor Edwin R. Keedy of the University of Pennsylvania who with Professor William E. Mickel of the university framed it, said General Butler encouraged the use of revolvers by officers in Philadelphia.

"In my opinion," he commented, "his attitude hurt the administration of law."

Newton D. Baker, secretary of war under Woodrow Wilson, replied that he did not feel any action should be taken that would hamper officers in dealing with the "modern gangster."

He added that the fight surrounding the arrest of Crowley and Durringer read like a "skirmish on the western front."

George W. Wickesham, chairman of the law enforcement commission, told the institute council that changes should be made extending the right of the officer to use force and that state legislatures should be given opportunity to add to the list of crimes named in the statute.

Most of the members participating in the discussion sided with Baker and Wickesham. The proposal by Keedy and Mickel was defended, however, by Judge Floyd E. Thompson, of Chicago.

Atlee Pomerene, prosecutor in the naval oil lease scandals, said he did not believe in giving officers the right to kill or wound in making arrests in all cases of felonies. He cited the case of a woman in Michigan who was sent to prison for life upon conviction of violating the prohibition laws for the fourth time. If the proposed law were sufficiently broad, Pomerene said, an officer would have had the right to shoot the woman if she had attempted to escape.

Baker also objected to the language in the proposed law on summoning witnesses. He said the thousand mile restriction should be stricken out, citing as an illustration the case of Henry M. Blackmer, oil man, who refused to return from France to testify on the oil lease cases.

The proposed statutes adopted are intended for enactment by state legislatures. The "right to arrest" probably will not be taken up until the institute meeting next year.

Members of the institute called on President and Mrs. Hoover at the White House at the close of the day's session.

RAFE KING GIVEN LIFE IN PRISON

LANCASTER, S. C., May 8.—(P)—Rafe F. King, convicted last night of murder of his wife, Faye Wilson King, on January 29, 1929, today was sentenced in general sessions court here to life imprisonment.

The Sharon farmer was sentenced after Thomas F. McDow, counsel for the defense, announced that he would not ask Judge C. C. Featherstone, presiding, to order an examination of King to determine his mental condition.

Judge Featherstone explained it was not necessary for a court order to be entered for a sanity hearing, for the governor has the right to order it at any time upon motion of a prisoner's counsel.

King appeared indifferent as sentence was passed.

SAN ANTONIO SHAKEN BY MYSTERY SHOCKS

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, May 8.—(P)—A series of mystery shocks which rattled windows and shook pictures from walls in various parts of the city today had police puzzled. The shocks were felt at Camp Stanley, 34 miles northwest, and at Kelly field, six miles southwest of San Antonio.

Investigation failed to reveal the source of the blasts. One theory was that the shocks emanated from Camp Stanley, where unserviceable explosives were being destroyed, but officers at that field and at the San Antonio arsenal said that sound could not be heard more than a mile.

At Kelly field the shocks were so violent as to rattle windows and shake the buildings.

SPAIN ABOLISHES STUDY OF RELIGION

MADRID, May 8.—(P)—Minister of Public Instruction Marcelino Domingo today in a decree abolished compulsory religious education in the schools. If the parents wish, children may attend classes conducted by priests without charge, the decree says.

AUDITOR DENOUNCES TENNESSEE AFFAIRS

Investigating Committee Ends Final Session After O'Connell's Testimony.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., May 8.—(P)—In all his 20 years as an auditor, J. H. O'Connell told the legislative investigating committee today he had never found "anything worse" than what has been developed in his examination of the state affairs of Tennessee. In fact, "a situation as bad as this," he had never seen.

With the auditor's testimony the committee dropped the curtain on the public hearings that have been held daily for almost four months and a subcommittee of outspoken anti-administrationists began work on drafting a report of findings for submission to the legislature May 25.

The final session started with the reading of numerous routine reports of the auditors to mostly vacant chairs, but when the name of E. H. Crump, Memphis political leader, entered the testimony there was a quick return of the absentees. Crump, once a vigorous opponent of Governor Henry H. Horton's administration and later a staunch ally, is now on the side of those demanding the governor's impeachment.

It was Committee Chairman W. W. Craig who introduced Crump's name. Craig had developed that O'Connell's first had made previous audits in Tennessee, but when he asked where they had been made the witness said "I don't think that is the committee's business and I refuse to answer."

Whereupon Craig leaned back in his chair and laughed heartily before proceeding. "Well, let me ask you this question, Mr. O'Connell," he said, "if you didn't audit the city of Memphis for Mr. Crump, who was mayor?"

"Yes, we did, but not for Mr. Crump," replied the witness who told other questioners that the Memphis audit in 1913 or 1914 was sponsored by a group opposing the city administration, that the Memphis officials had given the auditors every co-operation and nothing irregular was discovered, thus causing those backing the audit to be "a little bit put out."

Scott P. Fitzhugh asked if the audit had not given a "complete bill of health to the entire city government" and O'Connell said it had.

Robert L. McReynolds, of committee counsel, asked how the Memphis audit compared "with what you have found here in Tennessee?" and the witness replied: "There is no comparison. This situation is so much worse than you could not compare it. I never saw a situation as bad as this." Then to another questioner:

Carnation Sale Today to Aid Widows of Spanish War Vets

Mayor James L. Key Friday received the first carnation of the supply which Mrs. Eula B. Harrison, president of Theodore Roosevelt Auxiliary No. 2, United Spanish War Veterans, and her assistants will sell on Atlanta streets today as a benefit for widows and orphans of veterans.

Atlanta today will be urged to buy carnations to assist auxiliaries of Spanish War veterans in their efforts to aid widows and orphans of veterans. Mrs. Eula B. Harrison, president of Theodore Roosevelt Auxiliary No. 2, announced Friday.

The affair is a part of a national program and will be under the direction of the local headquarters. Members of the organization will be stationed at points of vantage throughout the borough and will sell the flowers to raise charity funds to be dispensed by the organization.

"We hope Atlanta will make a generous response in this time of need," Mrs. Harrison said. "The veterans, their widows and orphans need support more than in many months. Every penny will be judiciously and painstakingly administered where it will do the most good."

"I never saw anything worse in all my 20 years as an auditor."

When the Philippines came under the control of the United States O'Connell's firm made an audit and George L. Stockton sought to bring out the "this practically healthy country was in far better condition than Tennessee is today," O'Connell, however, was not familiar with the auditors' findings.

COMPANY FACES DRY LAW CHARGE

KANSAS CITY, May 8.—(P)—The Utah Grade Products Corporation of New York was charged with violation of the federal prohibition act today in proceedings which the district attorney's office said were designed to test the legality of the sale of grape concentrate.

Two counts filed against the corporation charged the sale of 10 gallons of unfermented grape concentrate, "designed and intended for the manufacture of liquor," and the sale of 10 gallons of unfermented grape concentrate to persons not having a license to manufacture vinegar.

Albert E. Brunett, former manager of the Kansas City branch of the corporation, faces trial May 18 on a charge of selling wine.

Thomas J. Layson, assistant district attorney, said the corporation would be subject to fine if found guilty.

OUSTED BISHOP SEEKS JOB BACK

GALLION, Ohio, May 8.—(P)—The Rev. William Montgomery Brown, who was ousted from the house of bishops of the Episcopal church following a trial for heresy seven years ago, announced here today he would seek reinstatement next October.

Bishop Brown, now 76 years old, last night supplied food to a group of hunger marchers on their way to Columbus from several Ohio cities. Addressing them he said that economic ills could be relieved only by communism.

Bishop Brown, who was head of the diocese of Arkansas, was convicted by a jury of 12 Episcopal bishops, because of his views on evolution.

He began his rise to the ecclesiastical post in Cleveland, at the Trinity cathedral where he was christened, confirmed and ordained, where he preached his first sermon, was married and in his old age, convicted.

200 DRY AGENTS ADDED BY BUREAU

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(P)—The prohibition bureau announced today that 200 of the 500 additional agents authorized by congress at its last session already have been appointed.

The largest reinforcements have been assigned to the New York, Chicago and Philadelphia areas.

The remainder of the 500 will be mobilized after July 1.

All districts have received a share of the additional force, although New York with 36, Chicago with 32, and Philadelphia with 28, head the list.

The tentative distribution of the 500, including agents already put to work, follows for the 12 prohibition districts:

Boston 20, New York 90, Philadelphia 70, Richmond 40, New Orleans 40, Chicago 80, St. Paul 40, Kansas City 25, Denver 15, San Francisco 20 and Seattle 20.

STRIKING STUDENTS RETURN TO CLASSES

ABERDEEN, S. D., May 8.—(P)—Striking students at Northern Normal and Industrial school returned to class today.

The disciplinary committee of the college headed by David Allen Anderson, president, announced full reinstatement had been granted Alfred Dieber and Bernice O'Grady, students whose dismissal Tuesday brought a general walkout and picketing of the campus.

W. S. Dolan promised that the state board of regents, of which he is a member, would investigate charges of incompetency and misconduct made by the students against Dr. Anderson and other faculty members.

The student body was assured that the "strike" activities would not affect credits or the issuance of certificates, diplomas, or degrees.

LANSDALE RELEASED ON BOND IN SHOOTING

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 8.—(P)—H. G. Lansdale, of Atlanta, Ga., charged with murder in connection with the hotel shooting of State Representative W. U. McCabe, was admitted to bond of $5,000 by Circuit Judge Abner McGee today.

Shortly after Judge McGee ruled favorable on Lansdale's application for bond at a habeas corpus hearing, the traveling salesman was released. He had been in jail since McCabe's death Wednesday from a bullet wound inflicted nearly two months ago.

Lansdale denied he fired the shot through the door of McCabe's room. Testimony was offered that shortly before the shooting Lansdale, occupying a room across from McCabe's, telephoned the hotel night clerk that if he didn't stop the noise in McCabe's room, he (Lansdale) would.

EXPORTS INCREASE IN FARM PRODUCTS

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(P)—A general increase in agricultural exports during March as compared with February was announced today by the agriculture department.

Larger shipments of all commodities except animal products, hard and tobacco raised the index figure to 87 per cent of the pre-war level in contrast to 71 the previous month and 82 in March, 1930.

Increased cotton exports were said to be the result of larger purchases by Japan and Germany.

The department said wheat and flour usually have ranked second among United States agricultural exports, but in the nine months ending March 31 these commodities dropped to third place, last tobacco exceeding their value by $28,000,000.

Large shipments of boxed apples to continental Europe helped raise the fruit export index to the second highest month's figure on record, or 391 per cent of pre-war.

Knee-deep in a swirling salmon stream—or even deeper in some office problem—you relish the taste of a good cigarette. And the better and milder the tobaccos, the better the taste and the milder the smoke—that's bound to follow. What you taste in Chesterfield is the flavor and aroma of the tobaccos themselves. Chesterfield's blend and cross-blend gives you a fragrance and delicacy you'll find in no other cigarette.

They're MILD—and yet they SATISFY!

FOR NINETEEN years, our Research Department has kept intimate touch with every new development of science that could be applied to the manufacture of cigarettes. During this period there has been no development of tested value or importance to the smoker which we have not incorporated into the making of Chesterfield cigarettes.

Lake Cargo Rate Fight Ended
Serged by I. C. C. Examiner

No Discrimination Being Shown Southern Coal
Operators, Investigator
Reports.

WAS DEBT STAND-STUMPS CHAMBER

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(AP)—Dismissal of the lake cargo rate cases was recommended today by Examiner C. C. Examiner.

In a report to the commission, the examiner said he had found southern coal mine operators were not being unduly preferred in freight rates
to Lake Erie ports.

Ohio and Pennsylvania operators were considered. He found no differences on the major resolution embodying the viewpoints of all national groups.

Georges Theunis, of Belgium, retiring president of the organization and chairman of the resolutions committee, said the question of international settlements "perhaps will be mentioned in a general way in the resolution. He declined further comment.

Alan H. Strawn, president of the American chamber and head of the national gathering, also refused to discuss the probable contents of the resolution, but said it would cover "practically everything on the agenda of the congress," which includes war debts,
the tariff, silver, agriculture and scores of other important subjects.

Strawn said reports were untrue
that the resolution committee had rejected an American proposal that in any reconsideration of the debt question no allowance be made for military expenditures in reviewing questions to pay.

He made a definite announcement of
when the chamber would be asked to say on the big economic questions of the day would have to await the concluding session tomorrow.

"Don't expect any sensational though," he said, adding, "there will be no discordant views when the committee is ready to report."

Discussion of the resolution at a group session late today, Wallace B.
Donham, dean of the graduate school of business administration at Harvard University, said soviet Russia was the only country that has solved the unemployment problem, although he said he had no sympathy for the "major objective of her economic system."

"Soviet Russia," he said, "has its man power from the production of capital to the production of goods for immediate use or to the production of goods for export. The view of the world is that without any problem of unemployment. The rest of the world must seek the answers to the problems of unemployment in these same three variables, for they are the only ways
that men can work."

"The problems should not be beyond
the wisdom of our political and business leadership. If it turns out to be beyond solution in the immediate future we must realize that we are facing a new era of development and that the world is facing a new era of development."

At the time of his death he had held a Baptist pastorate longer than any other minister in the city. He had been pastor of the Kirkwood church
for 18 years, coming to Atlanta from Huntsboro, Ala. The only other pastorate he held after graduation from
the seminary was at Orville, Ala.

His work as pastor of the local church had been outstanding. His
pastorship was marked by a fine
character in general. He had been a member of 170, a figure which
had grown to 1,285 at the time of his death. During his 18 years
of service he successfully had led a
movement to erect a new church building which was completed several years
ago and pronounced one of the most modern in the city. The church plant
includes an elaborate educational and
church activities building.

General Church Activities.
Mr. Jackson was noted not only
for his work in the church but for
his work in the community. He had
been elected to many responsible
posts in the state and southern Baptist conventions and at the time
of his death held the following offices:
Member of the executive committee of
the Georgia Baptist convention; member of the home missions board of the Southern Baptist convention; member of the executive committee of the Atlanta Baptist Association; member
of the Atlanta Baptist Ministers' conference.

He also was a past chairman of
the advisory committee of the Georgia Baptist convention, one of the
most responsible positions in state Baptist circles. He was a member of the New Orleans club and of the Kirkwood lodge of Masons.

In 1906 he married Miss Ada Wilson, of Atlanta, who bore him three children, Miss Elizabeth Jackson, a student
at Shorter College, Rome, and two sons,
Leland and Robert Jackson. The
family resided at 1225 Peachtree
avenue, N. E., and Mrs. Jackson, who was a sister, Mrs. Frank Seago, also
of Tuskegee, and a brother, Fletcher
Jackson, of New Orleans.

Services will be conducted at the Kirkwood Baptist church at 2:30
o'clock Sunday afternoon, but complete arrangements have not been made.

for 18 years, coming to Atlanta from Huntsboro, Ala. The only other pastorate he held after graduation from
the seminary was at Orville, Ala.

His work as pastor of the local church had been outstanding. His
pastorship was marked by a fine
character in general. He had been
a member of 170, a figure which
had grown to 1,285 at the time of
his death. During his 18 years
of service he successfully had led a
movement to erect a new church building which was completed several years
ago and pronounced one of the most modern in the city. The church plant
includes an elaborate educational and
church activities building.

General Church Activities.
Mr. Jackson was noted not only
for his work in the church but for
his work in the community. He had
been elected to many responsible
posts in the state and southern Baptist conventions and at the time
of his death held the following offices:
Member of the executive committee of
the Georgia Baptist convention; member of the home missions board of the Southern Baptist convention; member of the executive committee of the Atlanta Baptist Association; member
of the Atlanta Baptist Ministers' conference.

He also was a past chairman of
the advisory committee of the Georgia Baptist convention, one of the
most responsible positions in state
Baptist circles. He was a member of the New Orleans club and of the Kirkwood lodge of Masons.

In 1906 he married Miss Ada Wilson, of Atlanta, who bore him three
children, Miss Elizabeth Jackson, a student
at Shorter College, Rome, and two sons,
Leland and Robert Jackson. The
family resided at 1225 Peachtree
avenue, N. E., and Mrs. Jackson, who was a sister, Mrs. Frank Seago, also
of Tuskegee, and a brother, Fletcher
Jackson, of New Orleans.

Services will be conducted at the Kirkwood Baptist church at 2:30
o'clock Sunday afternoon, but complete arrangements have not been
made.

NEW YORK, May 8.—(P)—An SOS from the oil carrier Ruth Kellogg which reported she was on fire 250 miles south of Hatteras silenced local broadcasting stations from 6:24 p. m. until 6:46 p. m. today.

Robinson's Re-election Is Forecast by Harris

Democratic harmony was reflected in Atlanta Friday when United States Senator William J. Harris, of Georgia, asserted that Senator Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas, will be re-elected party leader of the upper house without opposition.

"I personally know," said the senior senator, here to address the Georgia convention of Disabled Veterans of the World War, "that practically every senator is committed to Senator Robinson for re-election and he will be chosen without opposition. Senator Robinson has more influence than any senator of either party."

The Georgia senior senator, if the democrats organize the upper branch of congress, will have his choice between the chairmanship of the appropriations and commerce committees. His friends predict that he will take the former.

INSTALLMENT XLII.

She looked at him dumbly, but there was expression now in her eyes, a dull suffering.

"You ask me that? You?" she said, almost in a whisper. "Why? Why have you come here at all?"

"Just to ask it. For Ronald's sake, for my own, for your mother's and Toni's. Greta—will you give me your word?"

She answered his question by another, scarcely audible.

"Don't you hate me?"

"Hate you?" he said slowly. "No, I don't hate you. I want you to forget. But I want a promise from you. I have the right to ask it."

"What can I do?" Greta's tone was expressionless.

"There's nothing."

"There's a very great deal, Ronald!" he raised his voice a little to reach that silent figure by the wall; "may I have a few minutes alone with Greta?"

"Certainly. I've a letter to write, so I'll do it now."

Staire wondered for a moment just how he could reach this pathetic, remote woman. Her pride seemed broken, her feelings numbed, her strongest quality, vanity, utterly gone from her, if her appearance meant anything.

"Listen, Greta," he said; "I can guess a little what you've been through. I can understand that you feel life is finished for you. But you will never forget all this. But you've got Ronald to think of. Ronald loves you as very few women are loved. For God's sake, rouse yourself and think about him and what he's endured. Pull yourself together and try to make up for all this. You can."

Greta's face did not change.

"Ronald is very good, but he doesn't love me as you think. How can he?"

"Doesn't he? I know better. Ronald is going through hell and only you can pull him out. Are you going to do it or not?"

"I can't do anything," Greta said tonelessly; "I'm no good to anyone, now."

He felt as though he were fighting a fog, so intangible, so smothering was her lethargy, so remote did she seem from anything he could say, as though she dwelt in some ephemeral realm where words had no power to touch her.

"Ronald loves you," he repeated, a little edge creeping into his voice.

"He's only thinking how to help you, how to bring happiness back into your life while—all you are thinking about is yourself. Have you heard him pitying himself, crying out for sympathy? Why not? Simple because he is not thinking at all of his own misery but of yours. You've played with his love all these years, you've done your best to break the heart of one of the finest men God ever made, and now you sit here and say he doesn't love you? Are you ever going to wake up to realities, or are you going on like this until you have lost him?"

"Lost him?" For the first time a gleam of animation came into her eyes and her voice. "Lost him? What do you mean?"

"What I say. Oh, not to another woman. He's not that type, but by death. Can't you see that he's ill? Ill and hopeless and nearly broken-hearted. People do die of those things, whatever the doctors may call them."

She stiffened in her low chair, the pallor deepening in her face, her eyes growing dark.

"You say he's ill? He never told me. Why haven't I been told?"

"Why should you be? Did you give him any cause to think you'd care?"

"Care?" she echoed sharply. "Of course I care! You're cruel—you don't understand."

"It's because I do understand that I came here. If you don't, after Donald will go to pieces. You've done enough, Greta, to those who love you. Don't have his life on your soul!"

He had reached her essential self at last. Eyes blazing, the color flaming into her cheeks, she sprang to her feet with an energy of which five minutes before he would not have believed her capable.

"You're cruel! You're cruel!" she was gasping out her words. "You came here pretending to be kind and to forgive me, and all you have in for Ronald! You say I'm responsible if he dies! Ronald! If Ronald dies I'll die, too! I'll kill myself! I won't live if he doesn't!"

Her voice rose wildly, she was shaking with sobs as Ronald, hearing her, ran out; and flinging himself in his arms, her face lifted, the tears pouring down it, her hands clutched at his shoulders.

"Ronald! Ronald! It's not true what he says! It's not true! I do love you—I can't live without you! Speak to me—hold me—send him away!"

Over her fair disheveled head the gaze of the two men met; then with an almost imperceptible nod, Ronald gathered his wife in his arms, and Staire, turning on his heel, went down the steep path and out through the little door in the wall on to the narrow mountain road.

Staire walked back the mile and a half to Cedarvale and finding there was no train that night and no car to be hired, was forced to remain in the little village, and after an extremely simple dinner at the primitive little inn, he went out for a walk in the spring twilight, watching the stars come out in the sapphire heavens, and the first rising glory of the moon lifting herself in a silver crescent above the mighty shoulder of Mont Blanc.

Up here the air was keen and pure and strangely exhilarating, and the sensations of remoteness from all sordid or mundane things, an uplifting of the soul into the realms of the spiritual, a realization of the power and the glory that lay behind the world's perplexities and miseries, a tranquil certainty that the purposes of God did indeed work towards the "glorious liberty of the free."

It is given to few to remain for long upon the mountain top of revelation, and Staire was no exception. The glory indeed faded, but the tranquil joy remained, and stayed through the brief hours of sleep, the long journey back to Paris and the arrival late at night at the dimly-lit station.

It was too late to call Toni, and he drove straight to his apartment, and woke to a morning of heavenly beauty, with the budding trees outside his window swaying in a warm southerly breeze, and the birds noisily collecting in the young branches.

It was almost unbelievable to wake late in his own bedroom, to lie between fine linen sheets, to see the gleam of tiled bathroom and plated faucets through the half-open door.

For the actual pleasure of it he lay watching the grey-green silk curtains moving to and fro in the soft spring wind, caring little about the hour, till the traffic in the avenue below and Francois' entrance made him realize that it was time to get up.

He had just finished shaving and dressing and was having his coffee and milk in the salon, when there was a ring at the door and Francois appeared in some concern.

"Monsieur, it is a Mademoiselle Berton. She says she must see you—for one moment. I told her you were not ready to see visitors, but she insisted."

"That's all right, Francois. Show her in," Staire said; and, as Gigi entered, rose from his chair.

"Good morning, Gigi," he said, and smiling, held out his hands. "It is you I have to thank for my return. I can't do it in words."

Gigi came across the room, and taking his hands, lifted her face for his kiss.

"Yes," she said, "you are back and now we are quite square. That's what you call it in England and America, isn't it—square?"

She repeated the word in her funny, hoarse accent, and he laughed, kissed her again, then put her into a chair.

"Have some coffee, Gigi," he said. "I don't suppose you have had much breakfast. Afraid of your figure? Sit down, I'll send for another cup." But she shook her head.

Police Officials in Augusta Ordered To 'Clean Up' City

Ultimatum of Civil Service Commission Asks Satisfactory Report or Resignation of Chief.

AUGUSTA, Ga., May 8.—(AP)—Police and detective chiefs of Augusta today were under orders of the civil service commission to "clean up" the town and "be prepared to make a satisfactory report not later than July 27" or face dismissal.

The commission's ultimatum, published today, was directed at Police Chief G. E. W. Britt and Detective Chief W. U. Reid. It instructed the two chiefs to "immediately get actively after all law violators, bootleggers, gamblers, slot machine operators and other law violators" and to "clean them out."

City Court Solicitor W. Innan Curry today called upon federal prohibition officials and county commissioners to lend a hand in the clean-up campaign.

Police Chief Britt said his instructions to his men would be the same as he gave them three years ago when he became chief. He said his duty is to carry out the law. Chief Reid said "it has always been the idea of the detective department to enforce the law" and that his department will continue to work along the lines as "laid down by the chief of police and the civil service commission."

In his call to county officials, City Solicitor Curry asked authority to employ two men to secure evidence against slot machine operators. He also wrote J. T. Crowder, of Savannah, prohibition administrator for the southern district of Georgia, asking for some undercover men to work here for the next few months. He said officers with him now were doing excellent service, but that a new type of work was needed.

Civil Service Commissioner Frank J. Miller, whose recent charge that there was "something radically wrong with the police department" caused an investigation to be started by city council, was the only member of the commission not present when the ultimatum was voted.

The investigation is now under way.

The brief resolution of the commission, in addition to its instructions to the police and detective chiefs, also asked the "full co-operation and support of all county officers, with respect to enforcement of the law."

MACON CONCERN FILES BANKRUPTCY PETITION

MACON, Ga., May 8.—(AP)—The Case-Fowler Lumber Company, made defendant in foreclosure proceedings in Bibb superior court Thursday, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in United States district court here Friday.

No schedule of assets and liabilities was filed.

In the state court proceedings Pope F. Brock, Macon attorney, was appointed receiver without contest, and under the order of Judge Malcolm D. Jones, he will take over the assets and liabilities of the company included in a trust deed executed in April, 1926, to secure a $500,000 issuance of bonds.

Federal Judge Cassius S. Deaver, of the middle district of Georgia, appointed H. L. MacEwen, connected with the Case-Fowler Lumber Company, as receiver in bankruptcy and authorized them to take over all properties not included in the trust deed.

The properties placed under control of Mr. MacEwen and Mr. Allen consist largely of accounts receivable, money on hand, contracts, etc., it was said. All the physical property of the corporation was covered in the trust deed.

Judge Jones this afternoon signed a formal order at Mr. Brock's instance allowing him certain privileges connected with the details of the company, such as provisions for insurance protection, etc.

Operation at the plants of the corporation in Bibb and Wayne counties has been suspended.

Ambulance Driver Dies After Emergency Trip

SAVANNAH, Ga., May 8.—(AP)—Richard Walecki, 21-year-old seaman, Friday died of a bullet wound, said to have been self-inflicted, and an ambulance driver, Patrick Roughen, who responded to the call, died 10 minutes after returning to police headquarters, apparently of a heart attack.

ALLEGED MURDERER KILLS SELF IN CELL

WAYCROSS, Ga., May 8.—(AP)—Wilkes Fullwood, in jail awaiting trial for the murder of Henry J. Barber last December, was found dead in his cell Friday with his throat cut.

A coroner's jury returned a verdict of death from a self-inflicted wound, using a razor blade.

It was the second attempt, sheriff's officers said, that Fullwood made in the past month to end his life.

Fullwood, a native of this county, slashed his throat with a razor blade, employing the same method he used in an attempt to end his life less than a month ago.

Discovery of the suicide was made when prisoners sounded an alarm. Sheriff L. C. Warren and deputies found Fullwood dead when they reached his cell.

Fullwood had confessed killing Barber, but claimed he shot in self-defense. He was arrested several hours after Barber's mutilated body was found on a lonely road on the edge of the Oklawaha swamp.

Barber had been stabbed 14 times about the neck and chest, and then beaten with a heavy instrument.

Officers are starting an investigation in attempt to learn how Fullwood and other prisoners obtained razor blades.

John A. Bell and Willard E. Bell were charged with returning false reports on the bank's financial status and another indictment charged William D. Bell and Willard E. Bell had reported less overdrafts than actually existed.

ATLANTA SCHOOL WINS JOURNALISM AWARD

Girls' High Times Receives Recognition; Other Prize Winners Revealed.

ATLANTA, Ga., May 8.—Five silver loving cups, given by The Athens Banner-Herald, were awarded to six may prize-winning high school publications at the fourth annual convention of the Georgia Scholastic Press Association, held Friday at the Henry W. Grady School of Journalism, University of Georgia.

The Girls' High Times, published by the Girls' High school, Atlanta, and edited by Miss Phoebe Rogers, won first place among school newspapers published in cities of the state having a population of 25,000 or more.

The Thumb Tack Tribune, of Athens High school, edited and managed by Tom A. Dozier and Max Michael, was awarded a cup for the best school newspaper in a Georgia city between 7,500 and 25,000 population. The Green and Gold, published by the Canton High school, and edited by Robert Dick, received the cup for the best school newspaper in a town of 7,500 or above. Jack J. Flint, Jr., was the first editor of this page, which during the year has been edited by Miss Mildred Tarkenton.

The Blue and Gold, the school page of the Spalding High school in the Griffin News, was the recipient of the cup for the best school page in a town of 7,500 or above. Jack J. Flint, Jr., was the first editor of this page, which during the year has been edited by Miss Mildred Tarkenton.

For the first time no prize was given in the magazine field, because of the small number of entries. Judges in the contest were Professor John E. Drewry, of the Henry W. Grady School of Journalism, formerly president of the American Association of Teachers of Journalism; Edward C. Crouse, instructor in journalism, and John F. Galloway, assistant in journalism.

Snelling Speaks.

Chancellor Charles M. Snelling delivered the welcome address. He asked the students to be genuine and not to advertise themselves but to let their work prove what they are.

Students were urged to make adequate preparations for their career as journalists by Paul W. Chapman, state director of vocational education, who addressed the morning session.

Stating that it affords the Athens Banner-Herald much pleasure to cooperate with the schools in the interest of journalism, Earl B. Braswell, publisher and general manager of the newspaper, awarded the silver loving cups to the winning publications.

John E. Drewry, professor of journalism at the university, spoke on the subject, "The Uses of Journalism in a High School." "Journalism," he said, "has three places at a high school—as a part of an English course, as a separate selective course, and as a press club."

A college journalism course advocates the study of liberal arts as well as the study of professional journalism," Mr. Drewry stated.

The visitors were taken on a tour of the college by members of Sigma Delta Chi and Theta Sigma Phi, national professional fraternities.

More than 350 attended the annual G. S. P. A. luncheon. Dr. R. E. Park delivered the principal address, stressing the value of a high school education.

The missions of a high school press were enumerated by Dr. J. S. Stewart. Motion pictures of the high school editors were taken by Dr. M. L. Dugan, Atlanta, state school superintendent, and they will be shown at schools throughout the state. Dr. Dugan requested that next year every school send its paper to the state board of education office so that they may be kept on file.

Miss Agnes McJannet, Athens High school, was elected president of the association for the coming year.

Other officers elected were: Tom Hardman, Commerce High school, vice president; Miss Viola James, Girls' High school, Atlanta, secretary, and Miss Alice Chamlee, Canton, treasurer.

the treasury, while in 1928-29 the sum was $28,000,000."

Senator Harris spoke briefly of the study that is being made to devise new uses for cotton and of the restrictions that are being placed on bringing Mexican labor into this country to farm cotton at labor costs below the American standard and he told about the effort to have jute restricted so as to eliminate competition with pauper labor of India.

Mr. Allen presented the king and queen and their court to the assembly during the program. The royal pair took seats in the center of the stage and the courtiers were ranged on either side. The men were in suits of white and the girls in pastel shades of organdy.

C. E. Allen, general chairman, struck the keynote in introducing the speakers when he said the purpose of the festival was to create an interest in more uses for cotton.

Mayor Toole welcomed the people to the city.

The festival continues tomorrow with another full day's program, featuring a juvenile style show in the morning, an exhibition drive in the afternoon and a combined program at night, starting at 7:30 o'clock, of style shows by the Cotton Textile Institute and by the Durene Association and concluding with a cotton ball.

Between these two programs will be the much anticipated event of the crowning of the king and queen as they take the front of the stage with their entire court.

In the parade Friday Bleeckley county with its float of gold and white took first prize; Eastman and Dodge county took second place; Jones county was awarded third place, and Sumter county, a fourth. In making the announcement of the awards, Major John S. Cohen, of the Atlanta Journal, said if there had been a fifth prize it would have gone to Baldwin county for its float. Special mention was also made of the floats entered by Bibb county and the Georgia State College of Agriculture, neither of which competed for prizes.

While the huge cotton arch was fired early Friday, there was still plenty of cotton in sight, half of the arch remaining intact, and there were bales on every street corner in the downtown district.

Troops of the 121st infantry, four brass bands and floats from surrounding cities as well as from Macon took part in the parade. The center of the festival, Miss Nanette Ruff, and her king, Robert M. Gamble, with the court, rode in a decorated automobile at the head of the parade.

First of the floats was that of the state college in green and white illustrating the use of cotton for household and making clothes for all members of the family. The motto of the 4-H Club was used in the float—"To Make Best, Better."

Next came Bibb county's float in yellow and white showing King Cotton on his throne attended by pages. Two floats of the college of 1935 and the county demonstrated the continual use of cotton. Participating were Henry Hamlin, as king; Sara Ann Balkcom, Gwynelle Anderson, Jimmy McQuown and Earl Moseley as pages. Wearing the dress of 1895 was Julia Calhoun and the dress of 1931, Virginia Clemm.

The float was financed by the county commissioners and did not compete for a prize.

Sumter county, which won fourth prize, rode in as a swan and had King Cotton seated on his throne on one end and an old spinning wheel and cotton yarn and a negro picking cotton.

A jumping boll weevil attracted attention on the float of Baldwin county, which came next. Here the story was told of the threat of the weevils of cotton, the boll weevil, and the cotton pickers, W. L. Jessup river plantation was featured.

Winner of the third prize, Jones county, came next. Jones was the first county to ship cotton and this fact was noted with a dividing setting showing the old-time spinning and modern girls dressed in cotton.

The second prize winner came next. This was a plantation scene along the river and was the Eastman and Dodge county entry. It pictured growing cotton, cotton bolls and a shanty of cotton pickers. W. L. Jessup river plantation was featured.

SAFETY LEAGUE

The war on needless automobile fatalities has started. America is swinging into action. The Silvertown Safety League, sponsored by Goodrich Silvertown Inc., is well under way! Look along the road. The legions of safety are coming... emblems clearly displayed. Men and women newly and freshly conscious of the duty of a driver to his neighbors, to his own family and to himself. Do you feel perhaps that signing a pledge to observe commonsense road rules can't help much... can't really change habits? Then you don't know human nature. By signing this pledge... going on record... you make these simple rules real to yourself. You are ten times more likely to follow them than before signing. You'll check the impulse to pass another motorist on the crest of a hill or rounding a blind turn. You'll keep brakes, tires and lights in safe condition. When you see another car coming toward you, marked with the Safe Driver's Emblem, you'll instinctively offer the road and courtesy YOU expect. United public opinion can work miracles. We need YOUR support in this timely crusade against reckless driving. Sign the pledge at once and receive a beautiful chromium emblem for the radiator of your car. This new station is headquarters for the Silvertown Safety League in Atlanta.

THE SILVERTOWN SAFETY LEAGUE

I agree

- 1 To drive at speeds in keeping with the safety of others as well as myself.
- 2 To keep on the right side of the road, except when passing.
- 3 To pass only when I know there is ample time and space—never on blind curves or when nearing the crest of a hill.
- 4 To go through intersections only when I have the right of way.
- 5 To observe all traffic signals.
- 6 To give signals myself that can be clearly seen and understood, before turning or stopping in traffic.
- 7 To drive only when in full possession of my faculties.
- 8 To keep my brakes, lights, and horn in good condition.
- 9 To operate my car on tires which assure a positive grip on the road—safe traction—and freedom from hazardous tire failures.

Miss Ruth Brooke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas R. Brooke, of Atlanta, who has accepted a position on the staff of the Radford Drama School in Tacoma, Wash. The invitation to become associated with this well-known school on the west coast came to this popular Atlantan during a recent visit to her uncle and aunt, Captain Thomas W. Jones and Mrs. Jones, at Fort Lewis, Wash., situated near Tacoma and Seattle. Miss Brooke is a graduate of Oglethorpe University and has enjoyed wide popularity in Atlanta's college and social circles. She has had extensive training in her chosen profession, having studied with the renowned Meta Hansen, of Sweden, and graduating from the well-known Perry-Mansfield School of Dance in Colorado.

Junior League Marionettes To Be Presented This Morning

"Hansel and Gretel" and "Cinderella," dramatizations of delightful fairy stories, will be presented by the Junior League Marionettes this morning at 10:30 o'clock at the Buckhead theater. This will be one of the most elaborate marionette programs yet presented by the Atlanta Junior League. These two plays are indeed "Junior League" productions, for members of the Junior League have created the entire production, the fascinating marionettes, the colorful scenery and the stage properties, and have arranged the delightful musical accompaniment.

The production is under the direction of Mrs. Wiley Ballard, the Junior League chairman of marionettes. The scenery was designed and painted by Miss Frances Brown, Mrs. Benson Tigner and Mrs. Emory Cooke. The very clever sketches on the program are the work of Hermoine Walker Stevens, who has had numerous examples of her work published in the Junior League Magazine, and who designed the colorful cover for the Junior League program last year. Mrs. Bruce Woodruff has arranged the music for "Hansel and Gretel" from the score of Humperdinck's opera "Hansel and Gretel." The "Hansel and Gretel" dance music, the prayer music and the fairy music from this well-known opera will be the accompaniment of parts of the play. Mrs. Delaney Sledge will play this music and Mrs. Harold Coolidge will sing. Mrs. Sledge and Mrs. Coolidge are two of the most talented musicians in the Junior League. The music will add charm and interest to the story developed by the marionettes.

Junior League members compose the cast of the two plays. The cast is as follows: "Hansel and Gretel"—Hansel, Mrs. Ruthford Ellis; Gretel, Mrs. Edward Van Winkle; Prince, the dog, Mrs. Robert Crichton, Jr.; stepmother, Mrs. William Huger; goblin, Mrs. William Huger; witch, Mrs. Murdoch Egan; "Cinderella"—Cinderella, Mrs. John Outley, Jr.; prince, Mrs. Edward Van Winkle; stepmother, Mrs. William Huger; older sister, Mrs. Nisbet Marzette; younger sister, Mrs. Bruce Woodruff; godmother, Mrs. Charles Rawson; page, Mrs. Perrin Nicolson, Jr.; courtiers, Mrs. Wiley Ballard and Mrs. Charles Rawson. Mrs. J. R. Lenhardt is the property chairman for the two plays.

Mrs. Jonathon Woody is the chairman of ushers for the plays to be presented this morning. Assisting her will be Mrs. Joe Walker, Mrs. John M. Slaton, Jr., Mrs. Edwin Burke, Mrs. Croon Partridge, Mrs. Foster Hume and Mrs. Edwin Lockridge. Mrs. Harold Coolidge is the chairman for tickets. Mrs. Boykin Pennington is the assistant chairman. Tickets for the plays are 25 cents, with no reserved seats. They may be purchased from the ticket chairman, from any member of the league and at the box office this morning. Mrs. Charles Palmer will be in the box office.

Numbers of parties will attend the Marionette production. Among those entertaining are Mrs. Robert Foster, Mrs. Clark Howell, Jr., Mrs. William Huger, Mrs. Charles Palmer, Mrs. Turner Jones, Miss Frances Brown and Mrs. Wiley Ballard.

Music Club Honored.
Members of the Music Club from the piano class of Miss Alice Gayle were entertained by Miss Betty Black, daughter of Eugene Black, Jr., at her home on Tuxedo road, Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock. The meeting was held in recognition of national music week. Features of the program were a piano solo by each member, a musical poem read by Helena Bell and a minuet from a Beethoven sonata.
